

CHURCHILL IN WASHINGTON; CONFERS WITH ROOSEVELT

HISTORY-MAKING—Determination was written all over the face of Prime Minister Winston Churchill when he arrived in Washington yesterday for a conference with President Roosevelt concerning the Anglo-American can fight against Hitlerism. The President met the Prime Minister at an unidentified airport after his secret Atlantic crossing and the pair rushed to the White House where they were closeted last night. This was the second time in less than a year that Roosevelt and Churchill had met to chart the course the two countries will follow. Equally dramatic was yesterday's meeting and the rendezvous "somewhere in the Atlantic" last summer.

Arrives After Secret Trip To U. S.; Will Discuss War Effort

Goes to White House; Hitler's Defeat Is Primary Objective, President's Statement Says.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Prime Minister Winston Churchill, after a secret and history-making journey, arrived in Washington today, and tonight was closeted with President Roosevelt in the White House discussing unified war plans to encompass "the defeat of Hitlerism throughout the world."

The daring trip by Britain's rotund little fighting premier was announced by the White House, which said that Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply, and a technical staff accompanied him.

Just how he made the journey was revealed that the last leg, at least, was by air. He was met "at a near-by airport" by President Roosevelt, and in full wartime secrecy was conducted to the White House by the chief executive himself, there to be the guest of Mr. Roosevelt.

Objectives Surmised.

The prime minister, it was said, was wearing a reefers—presumably his familiar pea jacket—and a cap.

There was widespread speculation that the conferences would cover such questions as:

Establishment of a supreme command for the fighting forces of all of Hitler's opponents.

Establishment of a joint ministry of supply for all the armies.

A dispatch from London today gave a hint, perhaps, of a question which may become of immediate importance in the conversations. This is how the Mediterranean might be defended in event the Nazis launch an all-out attempt to close it.

The London dispatch said a source which often had remarkably accurate information had expressed belief the Germans were preparing for such an attempt. This might be undertaken by a drive through Spain and Portugal to Africa, through Turkey to the Suez, or from Greece and Italy to North Africa by a combined air and sea assault such as was carried out against Crete.

In a statement, President Roosevelt said there was one primary objective, the defeat of Hitlerism throughout the world, in conversations to be held during the next few days between President and prime minister and the respective staffs of the two countries.

Preliminary Parley.

The statement said these conferences should be regarded as preliminary to further parleys which will officially include Russia, China, the Netherlands, and the British dominions.

"It is expected," the President said, "that there will thus be evolved an over-all unity in the conduct of the war. Other nations will be asked to participate to the best of their ability in the over-all objective."

"It is probable that no further announcements will be made until the end of the present conferences but it may be assumed that the other interested nations will be kept in close touch with this preliminary planning."

White House Text.

Here is the text of the White House announcement:

"There is, of course, one primary objective in the conversations to be held during the next few days between the President and the British prime minister and the respective staffs of the two countries. That purpose is the defeat of Hitlerism throughout the world.

"It should be remembered that many other nations are engaged today in this common task. Therefore, the present conferences in Washington should be regarded as preliminary to further conferences which will officially include Russia, China, the Netherlands and the Dominions. It is expected that there will thus be evolved an over-all unity in the conduct of the war. Other nations will be asked to participate to the best of their ability in the over-all objective."

"It is probable that no further announcements will be made until the end of the present conferences, but it may be assumed that the other interested nations will be kept in close touch with this preliminary planning."

A separate announcement, telling of Churchill's arrival, was terse:

"The British prime minister has arrived in the United States to discuss with the President all questions relevant to the concerted war effort. Mr. Churchill is accompanied by Lord Beaverbrook and a technical staff."

"Mr. Churchill is the guest of the President."

Consults Envoys.

Earlier in the day, the chief executive had consulted in turn with the Russian and Chinese ambassadors to the United States and the Netherlands minister.

Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, gave out the dramatic news of the second meeting of the President and prime minister in less than six months. They conferred somewhere at sea last August, when they drew up an eight-point "Atlantic charter" outlining their objectives and post-war aims.

The entire personnel of the British mission was not immediately announced. Lord Beaverbrook, it was recalled, headed the British delegation in Moscow at which plans for Anglo-American aid to Russia were drafted this fall.

Whether Churchill and his party made the entire trip by plane also was not revealed. Early said merely that the prime minister had arrived in Washington by air and was met at a nearby airport by the President.

This meeting apparently took place in mid-afternoon, as was indicated by activity around the White House.

London Informed.

But an announcement was withheld until tonight, when word of Churchill's arrival was released by Early in one White House office while Sir Gerald Campbell, director general of British Information Service in the United States, was flashing word to London by transatlantic telephone.

The meetings between Mr. Roosevelt and the prime minister are expected to be the first step in drafting unified war strategy.

Japs Hurlled Into Sea by Luzon Defenders

Heavy Force Finally Lands At Lingayen

Americans Have Situation
"Well in Hand," Says
Headquarters.

MANILA, Tuesday, Dec. 23.—Although thrown back into the sea at two points in a major invasion attempt, a heavy force of Japanese sea-borne troops supported by airplanes landed yesterday at Santo Tomas, on the Gulf of Lingayen, northwest of here.

General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced that American defenders had the situation "well in hand."

American tanks and artillery immediately went into action between Santo Tomas and Dagupan, a town several miles south of the landing place.

One unconfirmed report from Dagupan, on the gulf, said that at least three Japanese transports out of the 80 which had been sighted outside were sunk in the gulf itself.

Reliable sources said it was possible that many more had been destroyed by the American forces, who were using artillery and tanks against the landing parties.

(Washington already had announced that the fighting centered in the 20-mile coastal stretch along the gulf northward to Agoo, which is just north of Santo Tomas.)

The Army communique said: "The engagement yesterday occurred in the vicinity of Santo Tomas, La Union province. Latest

Hongkong Repels Part of Invaders

Beleaguered Defenders Maintain Radio Communication With London, Chungking

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chinese central headquarters on the Canton front reported today part of the Japanese troops which landed on Hongkong island have been driven off by the British defenders.

Hongkong's beleaguered defenders were still maintaining communication twice a day with London and Chungking by means of hidden radio stations.

Besides the island's defenders, M. Chai, chief secretary of the Chinese embassy in London, said 3,000 white women and children stayed and are living in caves burrowed deep in the sides of Victoria peak. All, he said, are well supplied with food and water.

Japanese Claims.
The newspaper Nichi Nichi reported in Tokyo that 713 British soldiers, mostly Canadians, had been captured on Hongkong island.

The Argentine And agency quoted a Tokyo dispatch received in Berlin as stating the British had withdrawn to a new line on Hongkong which was under heavy Japanese naval and artillery shelling.

Meanwhile brawny demolitionists who scorched the earth and burned the oil of Sarawa and Brunei arrived in Singapore from the Japanese-invaded Borneo states with a stirring account of their escape under air attack.

These men of the Royal Engineers said they began putting the torch to wells, pipelines, pumping stations and refineries a few days after war broke out.

Oil Wells Destroyed.
While they were systematically destroying the oil, British and Indian troops, barefoot native volunteers and rangers manned defenses against the anticipated Japanese assault.

When satisfied that the Japanese would get no oil from the Miri area the British units embarked aboard three small vessels, one of them the white Rajah's own yacht.

That was a few hours before the Japanese got there, but Nipponese airmen spotted them and kept them under attack for two days. No bombs hit their targets but the British commander was killed by machine-gunning.

Heavy Casualties.
British Malayan troops inflicted heavy casualties on the Japanese in another sharp jungle fight about 330 miles above Singapore, and the RAF smashed nine Japanese planes in two air actions, it was announced officially.

The British were said to be holding firmly in new positions anchored apparently in the west at Kuala Kangsar, 20 miles north of the tin mining center of Ipoh, and extending eastward to a point some 45 miles south of Kota Bharu where the Japanese made

$1,000 Given To Aid Needy Families Here

Many Other Groups Still Are in Need of Assistance.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A check for $1,000 has come from Mrs. Lettie P. Evans, of Atlanta and Hot Springs, Va., to aid this city's neediest families this Christmas, Atlantans—a generous gift which will help deserving men, women and children to become self-supporting.

That is heartening, but there are many families needing only a small lift right now to make them independent, too, and Atlantans easily could assure some of them that chance by rushing a contribution to the Opportunity fund right quick—before Christmas dawns on us day after tomorrow.

Gratifying Feeling.
Wouldn't you like to feel that you had done something for others this Christmas, feel that your gift was helping honest, ambitious mothers and fathers in their fight to become self-supporting?

"It is my compensation to know just how much my little mite has helped the unfortunate families," Mrs. Evans wrote in her letter "adopting" three families of the many whose stories have been told you by The Constitution this Christmas in co-operation with the Family Welfare Society.

Her donation will "adopt" Opportunity Families No. 13, 17 and 18 in the memory of her son, Conkey P. Whitehead, of Atlanta, who annually cared for several families anonymously before his death.

Mrs. Evans, too, has given generously to the Opportunity fami-

Army Officers Take Over City's Defenses

12 Retired Military Men Accede To LeCraw's Plea, To Open Headquarters Today

Retired Army officers living in Atlanta yesterday were called by Mayor LeCraw to assume full charge of the civilian defense program.

The city is the first in the nation to call upon the services of military men not on active duty, and the retired officers will serve without pay. The officers selected Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, U. S. A., retired, as chief of staff and prepared to take over organization and direction of civilian defense activities immediately. An office will be opened at the city hall today.

30,000 To Be Trained.
Training of 30,000 Atlanta citizens in all phases of civilian defense by March 1 was set as the goal of the new organization, the retired Army officers told Mayor LeCraw, Councilman James E. Jackson Jr., chairman of the Municipal Defense Council, and St. John W. Graydon, director of civilian protection.

The Defense Council swept personal and political considerations aside in urging the retired officers to take charge of local defense activities, asserting "the people of Atlanta are entitled to the very best defense possible, and we believe these men know more about it than any untrained group we could select from civilian life."

12 Offer Services.
Twelve officers attended the meeting yesterday. Brigadier General James H. Reeves, Red Cross executive; Colonel W. P. Stokely, Colonel T. S. Bratton, Lieutenant Colonel Frederick W. Benteen, Major James Herring, Major E. J. Bolu, Captain Enoch Graf, Captain A. W. Childress, Captain Roy Farmer, Lieutenant J. B. Oliver and Lieutenant Meyer Silverman offered their services to General Peyton.

Under the organization plan General Peyton will assign the members of his staff and reserve officers who later join up to specific divisions of the defense with emphasis on air raid warden and police and fire auxiliaries. These retired officers then will pick their aides and men will be selected from those who have registered or who register for civilian defense activities.

Training Under Way.
Police and fire schools already are under way training men to teach those who enlist the best methods from the experience of the British.

Although the officers who agreed to take over defense activities here are still on federal pay rolls because they have served the required number of years for pensions, they will receive no extra pay for their services with the city. They volunteered for the new duty.

The staff will be given free reign, the municipal committee said, in designation of all officer personnel, and it was intimated that they may call into the defense setup as many reserve officers who have not yet been called to active Army duty and who are not expected to be called within the next few months.

Graydon said the next 90 days are most important and will require long hours of hard work

British Wipe Out Axis Base, Move To Trap Main Forces

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A British desert patrol plunging 150 miles westward into Tripolitania was reported officially tonight to have wiped out an Axis garrison and air base in a brilliant move to trap the main German and Italian forces in flight near Bengasi, far to the east.

General Erwin von Rommel's main panzer troops were reported beating a hasty retreat toward Agadabia south of Bengasi, with British troops at their heels, while Italian rear guards tried to check the British only 25 miles east of Bengasi at El Abiar. These rear guards were being pressed back, the British said.

The brief British account of the daring thrust into Tripolitania said:

"A few days ago one of our mechanized patrols operating over 150 miles into Tripolitania carried out a brilliant surprise against an enemy airbase which had just been taken into use.

Aircraft Destroyed.
"No less than 24 German and Italian aircraft were destroyed on the ground, dumps of petrol (gasoline) and bombs were demolished, and the entire garrison which outnumbered the raiders by six to one, was accounted for."

This action put the British 450 miles beyond the Egyptian frontier and almost half way to Tripoli, the main Axis Libyan base, whose capture would be a death blow to Premier Mussolini's shattered empire, and would place Allied forces in contact with French North Africa.

The British did not name the site of the demolished base, but the distance suggested that it was at Sirte or nearby on the Bengasi-Tripoli coastal highway.

This advance force apparently was the one which early in this offensive cut straight across the Libyan desert to the Gulf of Sirte. The British have not mentioned it for the dispatches indicated that the Italians in Cirenaica were doing nearly all the rear guard fighting, with the Germans desperately trying to salvage their mechanized equipment in a retreat into Tripolitania, where the advance British patrol now stands.

These main British units now were more than 280 miles inside Cirenaica, the eastern division of Libya, and their tactics consisted of a swift series of encirclement efforts.

Northeast of Bengasi.
Northeast of Bengasi British units swept into Cirene and Appolonia, about 50 miles west of Derna on the coast. Axis troops also were said to be retreating toward Bengasi along the coastal road from those points, while other units were pocketed in the intervening mountain regions.

The penetration into Tripolitania was the first for the British. Last winter's offensive had carried the British to El Agheila, about 10 miles short of Tripolitania, before an Axis counter-offensive pushed them back to Egypt.

The British already have taken more than 10,000 Axis prisoners in the five-week-old push, 4,000 of them Germans, and big quantities of armament and mechanized equipment also fell into their hands along the littered desert roads.

Despite bad flying weather the RAF also was reported "reaping a rich reward" in low-level attacks on the fleeing Axis concentrations.

JAPS GO ALL-OUT—Savage, bloody fighting was reported raging yesterday around Lingayen bay, in the Philippines, as thousands of Japanese strove to seize a foothold from a great flotilla of 80 transports. Defending forces were reported holding firm. Shaded areas indicate the mountainous country in Luzon, principal Philippine island. Main roads down the valley to Manila and along the coast line are indicated.

Hongkong Still Standing Off Jap Invaders

their first landing on the peninsula December 8.

The new engagement occurred on the Grik-Kuala Kangsar highway in an area where the British said the Japanese were using rafts to ferry reinforcements down the Perak river from the north.

Six Planes Bagged.
British planes attacking a Japanese airfield in the north were said to have put six enemy aircraft out of commission.

Three other planes were shot down in a Japanese attack on Kuala Lumpur, a railway point between Ipoh and Singapore.

The British lost three planes in this second fight, the communiqué said.

Batavia dispatches said that Dutch army planes were supporting the RAF in Malaya, and Lieutenant General Hein Ter Poorten, commander in chief of the Netherlands Indies army, told his troops that "we already have inflicted severe blows upon the enemy."

The commander praised particularly the effective Dutch blows against the Japanese invaders of Miri, Sarawak, on Borneo island, and pointed to German reverses in Russia and Libya as proof that "already the tide in Europe is turning" against the Axis.

Severe Losses.
British troops "are inflicting severe losses on the Japanese" who gained a foothold in Sarawak, the BBC said in quoting a Batavia dispatch.

Though the lines for a grim struggle for Singapore were taking shape in the jungles of northern Malaya, Britain's heart still was with the embattled defenders of Hongkong, sticking defiantly by their guns in the face of a seemingly hopeless fate.

The latest word from the island came from the enemy and these reports, from Tokyo by way of Berlin, admitted that the crown colony's garrison still was fighting late Monday and that there was no respite for the Japanese attackers.

Although almost every anti-aircraft battery was reported silenced as Japanese bombers methodically carried out their missions overhead and the Japanese Navy had ringed the island, these reports acknowledged that a fighting garrison of 20,000 British empire troops remained to be subdued.

Constant Fire.
Japanese land and naval artillery, they declared, have kept parts of the island coast under constant fire.

Reports from Sir Mark Young, Hongkong's Governor, declared the Japanese were "very active all day," but British sources were doubtful that the defense could last long.

The Governor's words, some Britons thought, may have meant that the invaders were being meant to pay dearly. But others said the Japanese merely may have been proceeding cautiously to win the island at a minimum cost.

A Dome broadcast from Tokyo said that British resistance now was limited mostly to street fighting and guerrilla warfare and that "the wiping out of the last vestige of British imperialism in China is in its final stage."

Attack on Lingayen Is Seen As Prong of Powerful Pincers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Japanese attack in force on the Gulf of Lingayen, 110 miles north of Manila, was regarded in military circles here as possibly the first prong of a powerful pincers attack on General Douglas MacArthur's main defense army.

Defense plans for the Philippines, as revealed in practice maneuvers, were drafted in anticipation that the main enemy thrust would come at Lingayen.

Likewise, it was anticipated that an enemy might attempt a landing on the coast of Zambales province, northwest of Manila, and attempt to drive across the rugged Zambales peninsula in the direction of town of Tarlac, about 70 miles north of Manila.

Other Jaw.
Such a force would serve as the other jaw of a pincers movement against MacArthur's forces defending the valley north of Manila, which forms the main avenue of approach to the capital.

Soon after hostilities started, it was noted here, a large Japanese naval force appeared off the Zambales coast in the vicinity of the town of Iba, but withdrew without attempting to put troops ashore. Iba is about 80 miles northwest of Manila.

From the Iba vicinity no main roads lead across rugged hill jungles to Tarlac, but an improved highway extends southward to Subic bay, on which is situated Olongapo, a secondary base for Admiral Thomas C. Hart's Asiatic fleet.

With the Japanese apparently following closely preconceived American notions of what strategy an enemy would employ, the developing attack may be expected to test not only the mettle of the Philippine-American defenders but also well-prepared strategic plans for dealing with such assaults.

These plans are, naturally, secret as are the military resources available to General MacArthur.

The Japanese attack came before MacArthur had been able to complete long-range plans for defense of the islands, but it may not be amiss to recall an estimate he once made of what price an enemy would have to pay—once the defense program had been completed—to take the Philippines.

It would cost, he declared, half a million men, ten billion dollars, enormous casualties and three years' time.

MacArthur never had a chance to finish his program, but the belief here was that the price still was high—higher, in fact, than the Japanese have anticipated.

30,000 Troops Called to Guard Mexican Coast

Cabinet Member Says
Nation Stands Ready To Repel Invaders.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mexico has mobilized 30,000 men to guard her coasts, Javier Gomez, member of the cabinet and chief of the central department, said here today.

"While we are far from the center of operations we believe there is a remote possibility that Mexico will be attacked," he explained.

Gomez asserted that while Mexico is standing solidly beside the United States against the Axis "we have not declared war because no purpose would be served at the moment by it."

Gomez, his wife and their four children are spending a short vacation here. They will fly back to Mexico City Wednesday.

ENLISTMENTS BRISK.
ROME, Ga., Dec. 22.—Enlistments in the United States Navy through the local recruiting station hit a new high during the past week when 22 young men were sent to the Mason headquarters. At the same time the Marines enlisted two men. In all 26 men have entered either the Navy or Marine Corps since the declaration of war with Japan.

Problem of How to Pay Bills Solved

Wise Loan Proves Solution to Debt Worries

To most Atlantans the month of December brings a real problem of how to pay unusually heavy bills. Bills for fall clothing, fuel and Christmas gifts; taxes that must be paid, and many other such expenses can easily wreck the most carefully planned budget. A simple, business-like solution to this problem is to borrow enough money on a good loan plan to pay up worrisome debts. The loan itself can then be repaid in small, monthly amounts over a long period of time.

Loans of this type are a specialty of the Southern Security and Investment Corporation, located on the 4th floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building, at the corner of Broad and Marietta Streets. Almost anyone who has a job can get from $50.00 to $1,000.00 immediately without embarrassment or delay. Terms of repayment can be arranged over a period of a year or even up to 18 months. Security may be a plain note, endorsement, auto, furniture, diamonds or nearly anything of value. Legal interest rates are charged and loans can usually be refinanced to provide additional cash if necessary.

Persons who need cash or who are interested in keeping a good credit standing are invited to visit the friendly "Southern Security" offices for a discussion of the simplest solution to financial puzzles. The Southern Security and Investment Corporation tries to arrange all loans so that they will most nearly fit the varying needs of each individual borrower.

Nazis 'Miss Boat' On Whereabouts Of Churchill

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Germans did considerable guessing and got pretty warm on the whereabouts of Prime Minister Churchill before his presence in Washington was announced by the White House. But their last guess was among the farthest afield, placing him down in the Middle East, thousands of miles from where he is tonight.

For three days the German radio has been throwing out broad reports concerning the whereabouts of Churchill and hinting that he was either in Washington or Moscow.

Apparently the Germans were not very sure of their information, however, and were chiefly hopeful of smoking out something definite, for at 3:15 o'clock in the afternoon (Atlanta time) today, they abandoned this story less than four hours before its confirmation in Washington, and reported from Stockholm that "diplomatic opinion is increasingly voiced that Churchill is in the Middle East."

Transocean Broadcast.

This report, as well as most of those preceding it, were broadcasts of Transocean, German news agency, which cited Stockholm as the source.

A chronological account of these broadcasts follows:

Friday, December 19, 8:14 o'clock in the morning (Atlanta time), Transocean: "Parliamentary and political circles in London are asking themselves what Churchill is doing and where he is presently to be found. The last three days he has not been in the house of commons and did not attend any of the debates, although some were of considerable importance. It is recalled in London that on a former occasion when he disappeared so mysteriously from London he had met Roosevelt somewhere on the Atlantic. It is asserted for instance that Churchill is not in England but somewhere abroad—either in Washington or Moscow."

The next day, Saturday, December 20, the Tokyo radio and the French news agency Havas, contributed to the rumors.

Havas Is Quoted.

A cable quoted a Havas "dispatch from Istanbul" as saying "it is reported in Turkey that Churchill shortly will go to Cairo to confer with U. S. Ambassador William C. Bullitt."

The Tokyo radio, which said its information came from Stockholm, said "reports arriving from London further revealed that Churchill's disappearance for the past four days has aroused a sensation with political circles opining Churchill probably is in Washington or Moscow."

Taking up today's theme that Churchill might be in Cairo, Transocean in its Stockholm report said that "it is also believed that General Wavell (British commander in India) and Air Marshal Brooke Popham (Far Eastern commander) have been called to Cairo to discuss further plans with Churchill. . . . Ambassador Bullitt is taking part in these talks."

Tonight, about three hours after the announcement that Churchill was in Washington, the German radio carried the news, quoting London by way of Stockholm.

Sunday Target

Practice Allowed

Despite complaints of residents who object to the sounds of war being brought close to their doors on the Sabbath, members of the Fulton County Defense Corps will continue their Sunday target practice on the North Fulton park rifle range, Police Chief George Mathieson, of Fulton county, said yesterday.

"While technically it is illegal to shoot firearms in parks on Sunday, I think the present emergency justifies the target practice," he chief said.

He added that the men who use the range for two hours on Sunday afternoons do so because their jobs prevent them from practicing at other times and places.

LOOKOUT, HITLER—"The Defeat of Hitlerism" is the primary objective of the second history-making meeting of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. The Premier arrived in Washington yesterday and was speeded to the White House with the President, who met him at a "near-by airport." Wearing his famous reefer, Churchill and the President were accompanied by Roosevelt's Naval aide, Captain John R. Beardall, to the White House, where Churchill will be a guest during his stay in this country. A staff accompanied him.

Troutman Volunteers Full Time As Director of State Defense

Robert B. Troutman, distinguished Atlanta attorney, yesterday volunteered to give his full time as director of state defense, as the Citizens Defense Committee planned to meet here this morning to adopt a program which will coordinate all home defense efforts throughout the state.

Troutman was nominated to succeed Hughes Spalding, temporary head of the defense body, who resigned, and will be named formally to the post at the meeting today.

At the same time Governor Talmadge announced that Mr. Troutman will be provided offices in the state capitol, and will be supplied a sufficient amount of "military help" to run the office.

Stockbridge Secretary. Basil Stockbridge, employee in the State Department of Education, will serve as secretary to the committee in charge of sending all bulletins and information to the county defense units.

Already at work on plans for statewide defense, Troutman said that "a definite program" for providing wartime protection to the state's civil population will be worked out at today's meeting.

Vice Chairman Charles Collier agreed with Troutman that today's meeting should clarify the whole defense setup, and "get the smoke out of our eyes so we can see where we are going."

Troutman said that the original organization, the "State Council for National Defense," set up by the Governor, will be retained with little alteration under the new plans.

"We will fit ourselves to it, rather than try to fit it to us," he said.

Colley Called to Duty. Though Colonel A. T. Colley, of Washington, Ga., West Point graduate and retired regular army officer, had been named by the Governor to serve as executive director of the citizens committee, it appeared possible yesterday that he may not be able to serve.

Officials said that Colonel Colley recently had been called back to active duty and that they had been unable to communicate with him so far. The committee will thus continue to function under an executive director.

Lieutenant Colonel Richard C. Job is serving as temporary executive director, but has been nominated as liaison officer between the central committee and the county committees when the permanent director is named.

Loganville Girl Accident Victim

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MONROE, Ga., Dec. 22.—Helen Brooks, 18, of Near Loganville, died today in the Walton county hospital of injuries received in an automobile accident near Youth community, about eight miles from Monroe.

Jack Everett, other occupant of the car, escaped with minor injuries.

DEFENSE CHIEFS—Mayor LeCraw, appointed by Mayor LaGuardia, federal director of Civilian Defense, as chairman of the Atlanta units; Brigadier General E. G. Peyton, named chief of staff for retired Army officers who will aid in organizing and training units for the Municipal Defense Council, and Councilman James E. Jackson, chairman of the Municipal Defense Council, are shown after a meeting yesterday at which local activities were placed in the hands of the ex-Army officers.

very best efforts and their full co-operation. He announced he will establish an office in the Municipal Defense Council offices at the city hall this morning.

General Peyton issued the following statement:

"While neither the mayor nor Atlanta claims that he or she has a right to make a demand upon us for this service, I believe we should feel that such a perfect right does exist. We entered the military or naval service as young men, dedicating our lives to the military requirements of peace in preparation for the hazards of war. For that service, we were promised and now receive compensation prescribed by law for retirement. The American citizens, including those of our home town, pay us that compensation. I, therefore, believe that Atlanta has a perfect right to ask us to help her to the best of our abilities in her hour of need."

"We have been creatures of orders for years and we are each convinced that we still possess administrative ability and that we likewise have expert knowledge, based on actual experiences, of certain phases of preparations for battle. We are now creatures of expectancy, considerably discouraged perhaps that the War Department has not seen fit to call us to perform those services which we know we can best perform."

"But now we don't have to wait longer to render service. Atlanta is offering us an exceptional opportunity to display initiative, organizational ability and leadership, and, if we fail, it is prima facie evidence that the War Department is eminently correct in not giving us a chance to serve in the present emergency."

Atlanta Sets Pace. "Atlanta is the first city in the United States to call upon its retired Army personnel and to turn over to them the most important duty of protecting her citizens from the ravages of enemy air attacks. This very act on the part of Atlanta is splendid confirmation of the special trust and confidence she places in our integrity and abilities. You know from your own experiences how anxiously our estimate of the present war situation is sought by our friends in Atlanta and how readily they accept that estimate, indicating a readiness and enthusiastic willingness to accept our help and leadership in this emergency."

"Every day when some representative of the government or of the Office of Production Management makes a plea for greater production and greater individual effort on the part of all citizens, I have been struck by the quickness of their response and the status of our own inactivity."

"Now we have our chance—a real chance for service, given us by the city of Atlanta. This job is far-reaching and ultimately provides a real contribution to national defense. By our successful handling of this emergency, we build morale and inspire confidence among citizens. We all know that a high morale back home increases the fighting value of the men at the front. I urge that we accept this responsibility and that we throw into it every ounce of effort, organizational ability and leadership that we possess. We have the time to devote to this job, abilities to insure its success and a chance to earn for the retired personnel a status of importance it has not heretofore enjoyed."

34 Asked to Help. A list bearing 34 names of retired officers of the Army was in the possession of General Peyton yesterday, and he plans to contact each today, urging them to enlist in Atlanta's defense activities for the duration of the emergency.

"We want them all," the general added. "This is no one-man war. We are all needed, and we will do a real job. It is our opportunity to do a real and lasting service to the town we love and for the people we love."

Brigadier General James H. Peyton, Red Cross official, pledged his support and that of the Red Cross in assisting the organization for the duration.

Jackson, the mayor and Graydon have hesitated about making an appointment for leaders, especially in the air-raid wardens, auxiliary fire and police divisions of the civilian defense setup, trying to find some way through which the very best available talent might become interested in the movement, they said yesterday.

Confidence Expressed. After the meeting of the retired officers, their definite action in the defense setup and their selection of General Peyton, they expressed confidence that the public will realize that their deference of such appointments was for "good of an efficient, well trained and commanded organization to protect their own lives and properties."

"The people of Atlanta owe you gentlemen a debt of gratitude," the mayor said. "We hope the people will respond generously as you have in order that our city will be well prepared to meet any emergency which may arise."

General Peyton, a native of Gallatin, Miss., is 65 years old. He was graduated from West Point in 1899, and served in the Philippine Insurrection as a second lieutenant. He was a colonel of the 80th Division, 320th Infantry, in France and earned a Distinguished Service medal. He also commanded the Army detachment attached to the Pacific peace conference.

He was commander of the 30th Division from 1928 to 1932 and established a home here then. He was chief of staff of the Eighth Corps Area at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and later commanded the 99th Reserve Division at Pittsburgh. He was retired September, 1938, for disability before he reached the mandatory retirement age of 64.

DEKALB PUSHES CIVILIAN DEFENSE. Vernon Frank, head of civilian defense in DeKalb county, said yesterday registrations will be suspended Wednesday and Thursday, but the office on Atlanta avenue will be open all other week days from 10 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night.

Mrs. T. E. McGeachy also announced registration is going on in all schools of the county, with the second week in January officially designated for school registration.

Registrations are in charge of the A.W.S. with Mrs. Augustus M. Roan as county chairman. Mrs. George Woods is chairman of receptionists, while Mrs. L. E. Campbell is in charge of tabulating cards.

Air Ministry Believes Nazi Craft Trapped

Direct Bomb Hit on Brest Docks Is Reported.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A direct bomb hit on the gates of the drydock at Brest, France, in an RAF daylight raid December 18 is believed to have trapped the 26,000-ton German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau in the docks and damaged them anew, the Air Ministry news service reported tonight.

It said aerial photographs taken during the raid also gave reason to believe, "although the confusion of smoke precluded a certainty, that a heavy bomb has fallen amidship and penetrated the deck of the Scharnhorst."

In addition, the service announced, it is "quite certain that a heavy armor-piercing bomb" fell between the stern of the Gneisenau and the side of the drydock and another similarly between the Scharnhorst and her dock.

The news service said neither battleship probably could be moved until the damaged gates are repaired. Moreover, it added, "a great number of bombs" have fallen close to them, although "how much damage these have done can only be conjectured at the moment."

Important submarine pens at Brest also were heavily bombed during the attack and received one certain and two probable hits, it reported.

"Buildings, possibly workshops, behind the submarine pens have been demolished."

Three hundred failed to report at the Todd-California shipyard in Richmond, Cal., where armored cars and trucks mounted with machine guns flanked 300 soldiers carrying fixed bayonets.

"The Army is here for one purpose—to see that any man who wants to go to work will be given the opportunity," said Major General Charles H. White, in command of the troops. "The right to picket will not be infringed."

Counter-pickets from AFL unions which the welders recently deserted, appeared. Welders carried signs reading "We Want to Work," while AFL placards read, "This Is Not a Picket Line; It Is a Fifth Column."

Harry F. Morton, industrial relations counsel for the plant, said cards had been taken away from 100 welders for failure to pay AFL dues and the men's names turned over to draft boards.

Insistence of Todd-California that the men pay dues to AFL unions in accordance with the closed shop contract precipitated the strike call. The union wants welders' cards recognized.

Troops and armored cars also appeared at the Richmond shipyard. Fifty-six of 400 welders failed to report there. Other soldiers guarded the Pacific Bridge Company's yard in Alameda and the Western Pipe and Steel plant in South San Francisco.

At the Permanente Magnesium plant near San Jose, 50 pipe welders failed to report but welders in other categories went to work.

Florida Directors Adopt Schedule

SILVER SPRINGS, Fla., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Directors of the Florida State Baseball League decided on Sunday to adopt a schedule and make final plans for the 1942 season at a meeting Sunday, February 8.

The directors gave unanimous approval to a major league amendment to the major-minor agreement that would push the period for drafting players back three weeks, thus giving the minors more time to complete player deals prior to the annual draft.

All eight clubs were represented at Sunday's session, presided over by Al Combs, of Gainesville, president.

City License Cost Increased at Rome

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ROME, Ga., Dec. 22.—Business houses here will pay 10 per cent more for their city licenses in 1942 under a new ordinance adopted here at an adjourned meeting of the city commission.

The general over-all increase will bring $4,500 additional revenue into the city treasury during the coming year, city officials have estimated.

The commission also accepted an offer from city police and firemen to take over guard duty at the city's water works. Policemen and firemen will replace paid guards at the station and will save the city about $380 a month.

Draft Expansion Signed, Registration Plans Are Prepared

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The draft expansion bill was signed into law by President Roosevelt today, and Selective Service officials began laying plans for registering the 23,500,000 men between 18 and 64, inclusive.

They said the men may be registered on several dates, by age groups, rather than en masse. It was believed the first registration might be next month. Registrants between the ages of 20 and 44, inclusive, will be liable to military service.

Already local boards have been advised by Brigadier General Lewis M. Hershey, national draft director, to prepare to tackle the task of classifying the vast additional manpower made available by the measure.

Existing Machinery.

Existing machinery, used to register and classify according to eligibility for military service, the 17,500,000 men between 21 and 35 already enrolled, is to be expanded and expanded as required.

No hint has been given by the War Department as to how fast the armed forces are to be expanded to meet war requirements. Secretary Stimson has said only that strategic considerations would dictate the expansion, that no ceiling would be set, and that the draft would be relied on to the exclusion of voluntary enlistments which are to be discontinued "as soon as the present rush subsides."

Some officials thought, however, the armed forces might be increased at a maximum rate of 200,000 a month, beginning in January, until additional mobilization and training camps are provided.

Big Reservoir.
A reservoir of approximately 1,000,000 Class 1-A men under 28 already is on call from the previous two registrations.

The army now totals nearly 2,000,000 men. Official plans submitted to congress before the war emergency contemplated expansion to some 3,000,000 as the next stage of building up ground forces, and appropriations for "critical" weapons were voted with this plan in view.

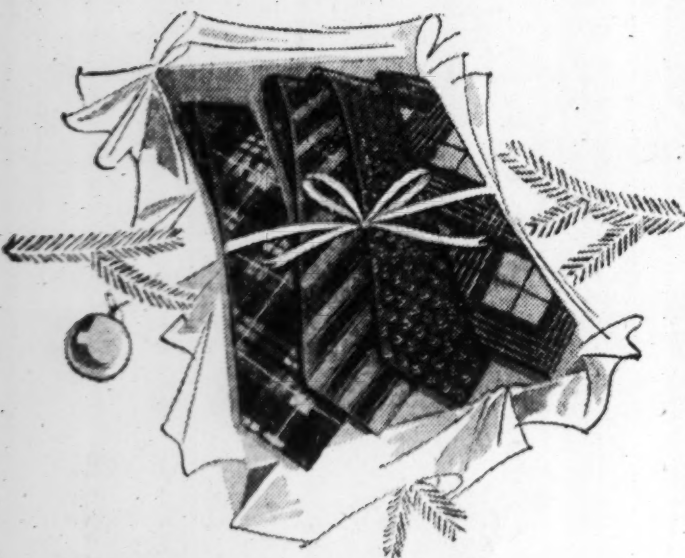

The senate today passed and sent to the house a bill to increase the authorized enlisted strength of the navy from 300,000 to 500,000 men. The measure would also raise the limit on the Marine Corps from 60,000 to 104,000.

QUOTA VOTE.

ELLAVILLE, Ga., Dec. 22.—Schley county cotton farmers recently voted 275 to 4 to retain cotton marketing quotas in 1942, according to County Agent J. D. Davis. In this county, 279 of the 609 eligible voters participated, compared with 250 last year.

Fulton County Workers Given Increase of $10

Plans Abandoned for Construction of New Almshouse.

The Fulton county commissioners yesterday increased the salaries of all county employees under their jurisdiction $10 a month and abandoned plans for the construction of a new almshouse in West End until the end of the war emergency.

The board rescinded a $5 per month raise voted at the last meeting and doubled the amount in a new order under pressure from organized labor, which demanded a 15 per cent increase. Labor leaders, headed by Dewey Johnson, president of the State Federation of Labor, were dissatisfied with the $10 increase and said they would press their claims at another meeting.

Commissioner Charlie Brown was the only member of the board to vote against the increases, on the ground that the budget did not warrant it. He said that the board already had appropriated $50,000 for defense work and that further sums would doubtless have to be voted.

Effective January 1.
The increases, effective January 1, will go to about 875 employees and will add about $120,000 per year to the payroll.

After hearing a report by County Auditor James L. Respass that salary increases must come out of other county services, such as the public works and parks departments, Johnson said:

"It is a poor excuse for this board to tell its employees they cannot grant just salary increases because they haven't got the money. If you haven't got it, it is up to you to find it. We elected you to conduct our county government. If you don't find it, you had better increase the size of the almshouse, because the county employees are going to put some of you folks out there."

It was pointed out that the county must, under the law, operate within a budget of about $5,000,000.

Abandonment Is Voted.
Johnson demanded to know what the necessity was for spending a large sum for construction of a new almshouse to replace the present one in North Fulton Park. Abandonment of the new almshouse during the wartime emergency was voted unanimously upon motion of Commissioner Charlie Brown, seconded by Commissioner Ed L. Almand. Brown told the labor men that abandonment of the almshouse for the present did not mean that the sum it was expected to cost, $175,000, would be available for salary increases.

He said that several grand juries had pointed out the need of repairs to the North Fulton Park structure. These would cost about $15,000. He also said he intended to push the construction of a new home for delinquent girls, at a cost of about $18,000, on Cooper street. Both he and Commissioner Almand agreed that the present building is so dilapidated it cannot be repaired.

Salary Increases Filled.

Before the close of the meeting, the Fulton county superior court judges filed with the board salary increases which, under the law, only they can make. These increases were for the personnel of the probation office. Chief Probation Officer George Allen Maddox received an increase from $232.50 per month to $250; S. N. Manning, assistant chief, was raised from $175 to $200. Probation Officers C. S. McKagen and Le Roy Webb were raised from $155 to $175. J. W. Maddox and J. W. Bridwell got $5 per month raises to $160, and Miss Idella Bellah was increased from $137.50 to $140. Mrs. Lena Wertz received an increase from $132.50 to $140.

Besides Johnson, labor leaders present were Albert Gosselt, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; William Suddeth, of the Painters' Union; Buck King, of the Machinists' Union; E. L. Abercrombie, of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs' Union, and J. F. Folsom, vice president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

Buy Normally, Public Is Urged

Pointing out that needless shortages may result in additional mandatory restrictions, John B. Reeves, district manager of the priorities field service, of the OPM, yesterday urged the public to buy normally and to refrain from hoarding.

He said that after the attack on Pearl Harbor, there was such a rush to buy tires that the priority order prohibiting all new tire purchases followed, a restriction which might have been prevented if there had been no abnormal demand.

"Let's not get excited and run to the stores to load our pantries and closets with things for which we have no immediate need," he added.

GOOD WIRING.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 22.—A cheap wiring job of the home in the beginning is false economy, according to extension service specialists. True economy is realized by installing a wiring system in the beginning that will supply electricity where desired as the equipment is added, the service states.

Churchill Flies To Washington For Parleys

for the Allies battling the Axis powers.

The White House had announced Saturday that joint planning for unity of action had been under way for some time with the British and would be extended to Russia, China, the Netherlands, and other governments engaged in the common cause of defeating the Axis.

Been Rumored.

Rumors had circulated for a week that the co-ordination of war efforts probably would bring Churchill and a staff of experts to Washington. The prime minister had been missing from London for some days, as he had been prior to his other momentous meeting with the President on American and British battleships last summer.

Throughout the day, an air of tension was apparent throughout the White House, and the press-room and lobby were crowded with reporters, radiomen, and photographers.

Campbell and an assistant, Robert G. Cruikshank, had been in and out of the executive offices at least three times, giving a further clue to the imminence of a sizable news break.

Guest of F. D. R.

Tonight, Churchill was the guest of the President in the White House. It appeared likely that for the time being the chiefs of government of the two great English-speaking nations, allied in a war for the second time in a generation, would carry on their conversations alone. Just when their staffs would be brought in was not readily apparent.

During the Atlantic conferences last summer, American officials conferred individually and in groups with corresponding British officials, and it was considered likely a similar pattern might be followed.

The way had been paved for Churchill's arrival in recent meetings between Mr. Roosevelt and the British ambassador, Lord Halifax. Yesterday and the preceding Sunday, the envoy came to the White House. Neither time was there an official announcement of his visit.

King Hopes Churchill Also Will Visit Ottawa

OTTAWA, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said tonight he hoped Winston Churchill would be able to visit Ottawa before returning to Britain from his Washington conference with President Roosevelt.

King said he had been invited to Washington during the British prime minister's stay there and that the date for his trip would be announced later.

Churchill's Tour Of U. S. Recalled

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Winston Churchill, British newspaperman and lecturer, was in Washington in February, 1932, on a lecture tour of the United States.

In his talk here he asserted that: "A financial, economic, military and political agreement between the United States and Great Britain is the best guarantee for a solidly established world peace."

Today the Right Honorable Winston Leonard Spencer Churchill, prime minister of Britain, came back to Washington to translate words into action.

Many More Towns Seized as Russian Advance Grows

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Reoccupation of a number of populated points advancing in fierce fighting was announced by the Soviet information bureau today.

The communists said the gains were registered all the way from Leningrad in the north to the Sea of Azov in the south. It mentioned specifically heavy fighting in the sectors before Leningrad, Moscow and Kalinin.

The accounts of continued Soviet gains were accompanied by the exultant declaration that after six months of war Russia "has begun to win and will continue to win."

Guerrillas Fight Openly.
Even guerrillas have come out into the open now and are mowing down the floundering Nazis from fixed positions, a Soviet announcement said.

In one sector of the Kalinin front, 90 miles northwest of Moscow, a guerrilla unit was credited with killing 223 German officers and men with machineguns and trench mortars set up on the Nazi line of retreat.

"The fascists, falling back under blows of Soviet troops, scattered in panic when the guerrillas opened fire and were unable to put up any organized resistance," the official account said.

As town after town littered with frozen Nazi dead and abandoned war equipment came back under the Red flag, the Moscow committee of the Communist party began plans for restoration of industries in the re-occupied area and mapped a spring planting program for fields now rutted from battle.

Northern Front.
On the northern front, the Russians reported clearing a 50-mile stretch of highway between Tikhvin and Volkhov, southeast of Leningrad, by wading knee-deep in snow through a swampy forest and encircling the 21st German Infantry Division.

Thousands of Germans were killed and 12 villages were recaptured in the encirclement, dispatches from the front said.

On the Moscow front the Germans were reported being hurled back eight to 12 miles a day west of Klin and beyond Volokolamsk. Tass declared that the Red army was encountering stubborn German resistance near Maloyaroslavets, 65 miles southwest of the capital, where it said "the enemy has gathered all his forces in order to repel our attacks and is holding strongly fortified positions."

Tass said, however, Russian attacks had pierced the German defenses, driving from two and a half to four miles into the German lines.

Thousands Slain.
Pravda reported that on the bitterly-contested Moscow front alone the Germans lost more than 117,000 dead from November 16 to December 20. In addition, the Communist party newspaper said, the Russians captured 2,113 tanks, 12,204 automobiles and trucks, 1,578 field guns and vast quantities of other war material there.

Dispatches from the Tula sector south of Moscow said 35 settlements were recaptured there in a single day by the Red army.

Farther to the south the Russians claimed the recapture of 100 more settlements, also in a single day, and said a vast encircling movement was under way against Axis forces on that flank of the battle-front.

Mrs. Berry Winslett, 745 Wylie street, received word from her son, Boyce Winslett, who is stationed at Schofield barracks. He is safe and was unharmed by the attack on the island.

Morris Green, who enlisted in the Navy at Charlotte, N. C., then went to Pearl Harbor and now is in Peru, sent word to his mother, Mrs. M. E. Green, 1193 Merlin avenue, telling her he was safe.

Police aid was sought yesterday in search for P. H. Finley, 36, of 687 Lee street, druggist employed in a Cedartown store, missing since December 15. He presumably left here for Cedartown by bus, but failed to arrive there, his wife told police. Finley is blue-eyed, five feet eight inches tall and weighs 160 pounds.

Bellwood Boys' Club members were feted last night by the Salvation Army and the Atlanta Optimist Club at a Christmas party in the S. & W. Cafeteria. Gifts of toys and candy were presented, following a dinner. Morgan Blake was master of ceremonies.

The Life of Our Lord

by Charles Dickens

(Written for His Children in 1846-49 and Held a Family Secret for Nearly a Century.)
Significance of Empty Sepulchre Is Stressed in Description of Scene in Which the Two Marys Find Stone Taken Away.

CHAPTER THE ELEVENTH.

Part Two.
When that morning began to dawn, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary and some other women, came to the sepulchre, with some more spices which they had prepared. As they were saying to each other, "How shall we roll away the stone?" the earth trembled and shook, and an angel, descending from heaven, rolled it back, and then sat resting on it. His countenance was like lightning, and his garments were white as snow, and at sight of him the men of the guard fainted away with fear, as if they were dead.

Mary Magdalene saw the stone rolled away, and waiting to see no more, ran to Peter and John who were coming towards the place, and said, "They have taken away the stone, and we know not where they have laid him!" They immediately ran to the tomb, but John, being the faster of the two, outran the other, and got there first. He stooped down and looked in, and saw the linen clothes lying in one place, and a napkin that had been bound about the head, in another. John also went in, then, and saw the same things. Then they went home, to tell the rest.

Jesus Appears.
But Mary Magdalene remained outside the sepulchre, weeping. After a little time, she stooped down and looked in, and saw two angels, clothed in white, sitting where the body of Christ had lain. These said to her, "Woman, why weepest thou?" She answered, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him." As she gave this answer, she turned round, and saw Jesus standing behind her, but did not then know Him. "Woman," said He, "why weepest thou? What seekest thou?" She, supposing Him to be the gardener, replied, "Sir! If thou hast borne my Lord hence, tell me where thou has laid Him, and I will take Him away." Jesus pronounced her name, "Mary." Then she knew Him, and, starting, exclaimed, "My Lord and my God!" "Touch me not," said Christ; "for I am not yet ascended to my Father, but go to my Disciples, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father, and your Father, and to my God, and to your God."

Accordingly, Mary Magdalene went and told the Disciples that she had seen Christ, and what He had said to her, and with them she found the other women whom she had left at the sepulchre when she had gone to call those two Disciples, Peter and John. These women told her and the rest that they had seen at the tomb two men in shining garments, at sight of whom they had been afraid, and had fled down, but who had told them that the Lord was risen, and also that they had seen Christ, on the way, and had held Him by the feet, and worshipped Him. But these accounts seemed to the Apostles, at that time, as idle tales, and they did not believe them.

The soldiers of the guard, too, when they recovered from their fainting-fit, and went to the chief priests to tell them what they had seen, were silenced with large sums of money, and were told by them to say that the Disciples had stolen the body away while they were asleep.

But it happened that on that same day, Simon and Cleopas—Simon one of the 12 Apostles, and Cleopas one of the followers of Christ—were walking to a village called Emmaus, at some little distance from Jerusalem, and were talking, by the way, upon the death and resurrection of Christ, when they were joined by a stranger, who explained the Scriptures to them, and told them a great deal about God, so that they wondered at His knowledge. As the night was fast coming on when they reached the village, they asked this stranger to stay with them, which He consented to do. When they all three sat down to supper, He took some bread, and blessed it, and broke it as Christ had done at the Last Supper. Looking on Him in wonder they found that His face was changed before them, and that it was Christ Himself, and as they looked on Him, He disappeared.

They instantly rose up, and returned to Jerusalem, and finding the Disciples sitting together, told them what they had seen. While they were speaking, Jesus suddenly stood in the midst of all the company, and said, "Peace be unto you!" Seeing that they were greatly frightened, He showed them His hands and feet, and invited them to touch Him, and to encourage them and give them time to recover themselves. He ate a piece of broiled fish and a piece of honeycomb before them all.

But Thomas, one of the 12 Apostles, was not there, at that time, and when the rest said to him afterwards, "We have seen the Lord!" he answered, "Except I shall see in His hands the print of the nails, and thrust my hand into His side, I will not believe!" At that moment, though the doors were all shut, Jesus again appeared, standing among them, and said, "Peace be unto you!" Then He said to Thomas, "Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands, and reach hither thy hand, and thrust it into my side, and be not faithless, but believing." And Thomas answered, and said to Him, "My Lord and my God!" Then said Jesus, "Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed. Blessed are they that have not seen me, and yet have believed."

Employer May Speak His Mind Freely on Labor, Court Holds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—In a major interpretation of the Wagner act, the supreme court ruled today that an employer may speak his mind freely on labor issues, provided his utterances are not part of a plan to coerce his workers in violation of the act.

The 7 to 0 opinion delivered by Justice Murphy asserted that the act does not enjoin an employer from expressing his "view on labor policies or problems."

But after giving this answer to a question which had troubled the minds of many employers, the court added that the Labor Board, in deciding whether a company had interfered with the rights of employees, "may look at what the company has said as well as what it has done."

Vocal Pressure.

"In determining whether a course of conduct amounts to restraint or coercion," the opinion said, "pressure exerted vocally by the employer may no more be disregarded than pressure exerted in other ways."

The opinion was delivered on litigation growing out of a Labor Board order directing the Virginia Electric and Power Company to disestablish a union of company employees. The board had held that the independent union was company-dominated.

Explaining that the board's ruling "seems based heavily upon findings which are not free from ambiguity and doubt," the court returned the case to the board "for a redetermination of the issues in the light of this opinion."

"We believe that the board, and not this court, should undertake the task of clarification," wrote Justice Murphy.

One of the issues revolved around a bulletin issued by the company and speeches delivered by company officials in 1937, shortly after the supreme court had held the Wagner act to be constitutional.

Company Union.

The board said the company, in the bulletin and speeches, favored a union of company employees and opposed "outside" labor organizations. The company, however, contended that it left the employees "completely free to follow what ever their own wishes might be."

The supreme court pointed out that the litigation also involved allegations that the company had an anti-union background, that an official had questioned employees concerning union activities, and that a company supervisor had warned employees that they would be discharged for "messing with the CIO."

But with regard to the bulletin and speeches by company officials, the court said "it does not appear that the board raised them to the stature of coercion by reliance on the surrounding circumstances."

"If the utterances are thus to be separated from their background, we find it difficult to sustain a finding of coercion with respect to them alone."

reports indicate our troops are holding a position north of Davao. The enemy was very active in the air yesterday. Numerous places were bombed and the ground attack was supported by aircraft.

It still was not known whether the Japanese had been able to bring any considerable amount of equipment ashore.

Although American tanks already had gone into action, also was not clear whether the Japanese intended to unload all of the 80 transports in Lingayen gulf, or try to shove shock forces ashore elsewhere during the night.

Mindanao Fighting.

An Army spokesman said no reports had been received from Davao on Mindanao island about the progress of the hard fighting there.

The prolonged silence about the far southern theater indicated that communications may have been cut.

A score or more of Filipino Army recruits under training at Camp Murphy were reported to have been killed by Japanese air bombs. Several scores were injured, newspaper dispatches said.

General MacArthur's communique late yesterday said that the ground forces in the Lingayen area "more than held their own," and the general added "Our troops are behaving well."

The assault had appeared in heavy force in 80 transports (with a force which Washington estimated at 80,000 to 100,000 men), but not all of his marauders had even reached the shore, for in at least one area Japanese destroyers and troopships were put to flight by the heavy American guns, and that landing was thus prevented.

Sinkings Rumored.

Rumors were heard at headquarters during the day of the sinking of Japanese transports in the gulf, but these had not been officially confirmed.

The struggle was joined in an area which MacArthur long had anticipated as the focal point of the major Japanese effort. Lingayen is 110 miles northwest of Manila.

The Lingayen coastal area commands two approaches to Manila: one, a flat interior corridor averaging some 40 miles in width over which railroad and road communication runs down to Manila; the other an indirect highway from Lingayen which loops around the northern end of the mountains of western Luzon, then turns southward toward Manila.

General MacArthur's yesterday's communique thus told the story: "This afternoon heavy fighting developed in the north, including tank combat."

Hold Own.

"Our troops more than held their own."

"At one point Japanese destroyers and transports were driven off by our heavy guns, and that landing was prevented."

One of the general's spokesmen remarked in supplement that the news at hand was "good news."

The picture thus drawn, one of struggling men and charging tanks, was of perhaps the most spectacular test of arms ever seen in a concentrated area in the Far East.

(In Washington, the War Department communique for Monday morning reported that the Japanese fleet of 80 transports had been under strong naval and air escort and had thrown forth a large number of 150-man barges.

"Some of them, it added, 'succeeded in getting ashore. The attempted invasion is being met with fierce resistance by American and Filipino troops.'")

General MacArthur's morning communique—his first of the day—announced that reliable information had not as yet been received from the far southern Philippine sector of Davao, on Mindanao island, more than 500 miles south of Manila.

It stated also that while there was continuing activity south of Vigan, one of the three initial Japanese beachheads on northwestern Luzon, reports of enemy reinforcements were conflicting and had not been confirmed.

(The War Department's Monday morning communique said of Davao only that there was continued fighting and that in other sectors, aside from Lingayen, renewed patrol activity had been reported.)

Japanese bombers attacked Manila twice yesterday, but only in small force. The first group numbered six raiders; the second only three.

At Federal Offices

With a clear calendar for the holiday season, Section 1, federal district court, presided over by Judge E. Marvin Underwood, adjourned yesterday until January 5, and court attaches were arranging schedules to give the greatest number of people the greatest number of days off for Christmas and New Year's.

Jack Tolbert, of the information staff of NYA, is expected to return today from a field trip to Savannah.

Two young people who gave their ages as 16 and 19 years were arraigned before Commissioner

David J. Meyerhardt yesterday for transportation of a stolen automobile from Lawson, Okla., to Atlanta. Both pleaded not guilty and their case was continued to Friday pending receipt of additional information from Oklahoma.

United States Attorney Lawrence Camp addressed a Jonesboro defense rally on the imporance of contributing to the Red Cross last night. To fortify the boss for his speech, employees of the office contributed 100 per cent to the Red Cross before they "knocked off" yesterday.

for small investment and profitable effort.

U. S. Will Assume Management of Job Service Two More U. S.

Arrangements for transferring Georgia's Employment Service to the federal government, effective January 1, will be worked out at a conference with social security officials tomorrow, Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huie said yesterday.

Earlier in the day the Governor sent a telegram to President Roosevelt putting the state employment machinery at the disposal of the federal government for the duration of the war.

This was in response to a telegram from the President, who asked that all state employment agencies be transferred in order to centralize the recruiting of manpower and womanpower for defense.

Huie expressed the opinion there would be no upset in making the change. He pointed out that Marion A. (Bugs) O'Connor would continue as director for Georgia, the appointment having been made by John J. Corson, director of the United States Employment Service.

O'Connor is now director of the state agency, which is financed almost entirely from federal funds.

Affected by the move will be 31 state offices of the service and about 250 employees. Huie said his department and the employment service would continue to be closely related, but that he presumed the employees would be paid directly from Washington.

Vessels Missed By Jittery Japs

Prowlers Off California Believed Fearful of Destroyers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The fact that enemy submarines have missed three merchant ships off California in the last three days, while hitting one, led to unofficial speculation today that the Japanese undersens skippers have "buck fever."

Some Navy officers said the Japanese, far from their home bases, apparently were too fearful of prowling United States destroyers to take enough time to aim carefully.

The latest of the ineffectual attacks occurred this morning when a Coast Guard announcement said, a submarine fired a torpedo at the Standard Oil tanker H. M. Storey off Point Arguello, 45 miles north of Santa Barbara, Cal.

Sub Skipper Misses. Skillfully zig-zagging, the tanker made the sub skipper miss. Then it laid down a smoke screen, and the submarine, apparently giving the thing up as a bad job, disappeared beneath the sea. The encounter was witnessed by on-lookers on the shore.

The Navy disclosed that a submarine, presumably Japanese, fired shells and a torpedo at the steamship Samoa off California Saturday, but "all shots missed their mark."

On the same day the tanker Agwiwoid was attacked off Cypress Point at Monterey, on her way from Los Angeles to San Francisco, but escaped by expert maneuvering.

Two Killed. However, two sailors were killed and five are missing as a result of the torpedoing and shelling of the tanker Emidio, off Cape Mendocino, Saturday. The tanker was abandoned by its crew. Thirty-one survivors, five of them injured, were brought to Eureka, Cal. today.

The Navy announced today that the S. S. Lahaina was sunk by shell fire in the vicinity of Hawaii December 11, with a loss of two men dead and two missing. Thirty survivors have landed at Kahului on the Island of Maui, south of Honolulu.

Five Shells Fired At Lumber Schooner. SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Captain Neils A. Sinnes, of the lumber schooner Samoa said today a giant submarine, presumably Japanese, fired five shells at the 2,000-ton vessel off the central California coast just before dawn December 18 and that a torpedo went directly under the ship.

The Samoa, steaming at forced draft, arrived in San Diego harbor last night. Navy officers immediately removed several shell and torpedo fragments which exploded to find their mark, but exploded near enough for shrapnel to drop on deck of the Samoa. "Five shells were fired at us," Captain Sinnes said. "One apparently aimed at our radio antenna burst in the air above the stern. Fragments fell to the deck. "Then we saw the tell-tale wake of a torpedo coming directly at us amidships. It was too late to do more than just wait for our destiny."

"The miracle happened. The torpedo went directly beneath us, didn't touch the hull and continued beyond. Evidently it struck some object in the water, because while the torpedo was still at a comparatively short distance from the Samoa, it exploded. There was a huge shower accompanied by smoke and flame, and possibly some of the fragments from the torpedo also fell on our deck. "Shortly after the attack, the submarine dove to about 40 feet away. Visibility was extremely poor and I couldn't make out the flag or anybody on board."

"There was a shout, 'Hey!' from the submarine. I replied, 'What do you want of us?' There was no answer and the submarine disappeared."

U. S. Planes Bomb Enemy Submarines

EUREKA, Cal., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Two big United States bombing planes dropped depth charges on the enemy submarine which torpedoed the tanker Emidio and possibly hit the undersens craft, Captain Clark A. Farrow, of the Emidio, disclosed upon his arrival today with 31 survivors of his ship. "It may have been 10 or 15 minutes after our S O S that two big U. S. bombing planes came roaring overhead from the coast," Captain Farrow said in an interview. "To us in the lifeboats that was a mighty welcome sight."

"The sub submerged. One of the two planes, circling where the sub had gone down, dropped a depth charge."

"But later as the planes were still circling, the periscope of the sub came slowly up to the surface 200 yards away and while still partially submerged fired a torpedo."

We saw the torpedo's trail as it headed for the tanker. There was a loud explosion as it struck. "Back came the planes as the sub sank out of sight again."

"One of the planes dropped another depth charge. There was a big blast and plenty of smoke. "That may have hit her, we figure, for we didn't see her again."

Theater Burns At Washington

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, Ga., Dec. 22.—The Strand theater, moving picture house, owned by Mrs. Williamson Wood, was completely destroyed by fire at noon today.

Because clocks in Washington are set each Monday by a noon alarm, the fire department did not bestir themselves until the second alarm several minutes later.

The fire is reported to have started in the furnace room and all equipment was destroyed within a few minutes. The show would have opened at 1 p. m.

Long Distance Lines Must Be Kept Clear Christmas and New Year's Day

Our Government is Depending Upon These Lines for Urgent Communication Needs

The immediate availability of Long Distance telephone facilities is vital to the communication needs of our government. We urge everyone who plans to exchange the season's greetings by Long Distance telephone, to please refrain from making these calls on Christmas or New Year's Day. The Long Distance telephone is already playing a major role in America's all-out war effort. Government Long Distance telephone requirements, both civilian and military, have stepped up sharply. Industrial plants engaged in defense production, radio networks and news services are relying more and more upon the speedy contacts made possible by the Long Distance telephone—Therefore we urgently appeal to you to help keep Long Distance lines clear, on Christmas and New Year's Day, that we may efficiently serve our Nation, unhampered by calls of a non-essential character.

Hitler Plans Surprise Move, Berlin Hints

BERN, Switzerland, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Suggestions that Adolf Hitler was planning to lunge out soon into new or currently inactive theaters, perhaps in the Near East or in the west, now that he has grasped personal supreme command of the German armed forces, were strong today in official Berlin broadcasts.

What was really in view remained, of course, in doubt. Following up Hitler's ouster of Field Marshal General Walther von Brauchitsch and his appeal to his soldiers and Nazi troops in Russia to hold fast during the winter in a mere war of defense, the official German news agency DNB declared that the war was "now approaching its decisive stage."

Familiar Phrases.

This, the familiar phraseology employed by Hitler or in his behalf when he is contemplating some new adventure, was accompanied by the statement:

"It is therefore understandable that the Fuehrer should now take over supreme command of the army, upon whom (Hitler) the main burden of operations will in future largely rest, in order to achieve even greater concentrations of German forces than hitherto."

Other broadcasts were at pains to assert that there had been no rift between Hitler and von Brauchitsch; that they had parted "in the most dignified manner"; and that in any event the dismissal of the highest officer of the German army had been simply a case of the "omission" of an intermediary. Hitler, it was added, now planned to execute for himself all campaigns "like those of France, Norway and Crete."

One broadcast summed up with the declaration that Hitler was not simply a political leader but "also a military genius," and that the successful German campaigns in Norway and in the west were directly due to the Fuehrer.

"Rest" Explained.

A German spokesman explained that when Hitler talked about a winter "rest" he was talking only of the Russian front; there were, he added, various other battlefields where big things might be in the offing.

The Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter expressed the belief that Hitler's decision to take everything over meant that "the center of gravity of military operations will be shifted from east to west."

The Basel newspaper Nachrichten commented that every German, at home or at the front, must now realize that the whole responsibility was on Hitler alone.

A London informant with a good record for accuracy in a past predicted that Hitler was preparing for a swift attempt to close the Mediterranean, thus to try to salvage the Libyan campaign and if possible to offset the retreat in Russia.

This, he added, might take the form of a drive through Spain and Portugal, a thrust through Turkey at Suez, or an attempted air-sea jump into North Africa from Greece and Italy.

$1,000 Given to Aid Needy Here

ties in the past and the families she "adopted" have proved worthy of her help and have won their battles for independence through her kindly aid.

We thank Mrs. Evans again for helping Atlanta's neediest men, women and children and we know her gift will result in as much happiness for these poor people this Christmas as in the past. But today, the stories of other Opportunity families—just as needy, just as deserving, just as worth saving, are told in this newspaper and Atlanta's are invited to help them—urged to give a dime, a dollar or many dollars to help rehabilitate ill and injured men and women, deserted mothers and widows, and boys and girls who want to go to school but can't unless you help.

No. 5 Need Help.

For instance, Opportunity Family No. 5, a man with five motherless children, needs help desperately. His wife died only a few months ago, of tuberculosis, and it is vitally important now to see that his sons and daughters, ranging in age from 9 to 16, have good food and proper care to prevent them having the disease, too.

This father, Mr. A., needs a minimum of $35 a month to supplement his small earnings—but if Atlantans will help him it will mean healthy children who will not be a menace to society.

Small donations could mount up to enough to see this harried father through this terrible trouble. Think what a Christmas it would be to this man and his children day after tomorrow to know that they will be fed and safe in 1942. Send your gift, big or little, to Hugh H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, who is treasurer of the Opportunity fund. Do it now—there is no time to waste!

Opportunity No. 19

Mrs. F. suffered a devastating shock recently. It still seems to her like a terrible dream.

Her husband, a young man, died a violent death while insane. This shock came shortly after Mrs. F.'s invalid father had come to live with them because he had no place else to go.

Mrs. F. has two sons, Henry, 6, and Ralph, who is 3, and now she is the sole hope of this family of four, herself, her father and her two boys. That is why she is your Christmas Opportunity No. 19 in the annual campaign presented by The Constitution in co-operation with the Family Welfare Society.

At 28, Mrs. F. has got to earn enough to support these three others. She wants to, but it isn't a question of wanting to. It's a question of having to. There is no one else. She is your Opportunity because it will take so little actually to help her accomplish this. Right now, she needs $35 a month to help her keep things going. Today, she isn't emotionally stable enough to hold a job if she got one, but no one can blame her for that. Tragedy strikes so swiftly and so deeply it takes time to heal the deep wounds. But she will recover and do the job. She has a real chance.

Help her by giving this Christmas to the Opportunity Fund. She will work out a plan and win. Send your help to Hugh H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, who is treasurer of the Opportunity Fund. But hurry.

Opportunity No. 20

Poor health suffered by a mother and father make the N. family your Christmas Opportunity No. 20 today, Atlantans.

Mr. and Mrs. N., who are under 40, are both handicapped so much by illness that they are not able right now to provide adequately for their two children, Elsie, 10, and Harold, 9, who are, of course, in school.

Mr. N. has pellagra (which doctors say can be remedied by a proper diet and treatment), and Mrs. N. has stomach ulcers. Their children are all right now, but must be kept that way.

This father operated a small grocery store in an Atlanta neighborhood for several years but competition forced him out. For a time, he has worked at painting and carpentering, but if there is to be a real chance for Mr. N. he will have to have a little help. This family needs $30 a month at least (more would speed its recovery). At the moment, Mr. N. is physically incapable of working, and Mrs. N. is confined to her bed. Real help could be given these unfortunate parents in Atlantans this Christmas. If you would like to help, send a contribution now to the Opportunity Fund. Every cent will be used for the city's neediest people.

Opportunity No. 21

A family of six—parents and four children, are living in two small rooms here in Atlanta today.

In these two rooms they cook, eat and sleep. In them, the children play and study (three of them are in school), and the father does most of the housework. The mother, most of the time, lies ill on her bed.

This is the D. family, your Christmas Opportunity No. 21. Mr. D. is a mechanic and probably would be able to earn enough for them all if Mrs. D. were not so ill. Mary, 16; Jim, 12; Lorraine, 11, are in school, and Ethel, 3, is the baby. To keep those two girls and boys in school is Mr. D.'s burning desire. He makes sacrifices to keep Mary there, wanting her to have a high school education.

But the main problem in this home is Mrs. D. She is frail, and ill, and she takes a great deal of Mr. D.'s working time looking after her. Mr. D. has no regular job right now. But the need for money is even greater than it was a few months ago. Mrs. D. needs special food, special care. This family, in all probability, could pull through to independence if helped with $35 a month for a time. If not helped, no one knows what will happen. Give a little this Christmas to help this poor family, Atlantans. Send a donation to the Opportunity Fund before Christmas Day.

Opportunity No. 22

Help for another deserted mother is needed this Christmas, Atlantans, and for that reason Mrs.

P. and her two small children become your Christmas Opportunity family No. 22.

Mrs. P.'s husband faded out of the picture just before Pauline, now 1, was born. Tommie, 3, is her other child.

This mother has got a part time job now, working a day or so a week in a 10-cent store, but she needs a little help this Christmas. Pauline has just become big enough for her mother to leave her, and when Mrs. P. works she leaves the children at a day nursery. But the fact remains Mrs. P. isn't earning enough money to properly feed and cloth her youngsters. She needs $20 a month for a short time.

Mrs. P., who is 28, has a good chance of getting a full-time job soon, making enough to go it alone as the wage earner for this little group. In the meantime, though, Atlantans could help ease her heavy burden by contributing a little to the Opportunity Fund this Christmas. Won't you help, too?

You can pick up many bargains by picking up and reading the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

Opportunity Fund Donations Dwindle

Donations to the Opportunity fund to help make Christmas a happy one for poor families and to aid in rehabilitating them in 1942 dwindled to a trickle yesterday, Atlantans.

Christmas is day after tomorrow—but it will be a sad one for many Opportunity families unless you help.

Traitors

The United States is at war. Facing a trilogy of enemy nations. It will take every man, every weapon, every ship, every dollar this nation can command to win the victory.

On Monday, at San Francisco, United States marines and soldiers, bayonets fixed and rifles loaded, stood guard at shipyards to prevent union labor fanatics from interfering with American workers going to their jobs in a vital war industry.

Those troops are necessary only because a group of unioners are so blind to their duty that they have preferred to range themselves on the side of America's enemies, rather than with their own nation.

They say the trouble is about a "jurisdictional dispute," as to which of two unions shall control the workers in various shipyards of the west coast. But it matters not what the cause of the dispute. There is no conceivable excuse today that will justify any strike in war industry, any interference by unions, management or any other persons in this country, with our conduct of the war.

Regardless of what they think of themselves, the union leaders who have called this strike of shipyard welders and the workers who obey their call, are fighting against Uncle Sam and are enlisted in the forces of Hitler, Mussolini and the Mikado. They are performing a service for those Axis gangsters that is as valuable as could be performed by one of their own regiments, by any air squadron under their command. For they are interfering with the building of ships of this nation and, unless we do build ships, rapidly, we cannot win the war.

The ships these strikers should be building are needed to carry supplies to the heroic Marines on Wake Island, to the defenders of the Philippines, to all our hard-pressed men on the fighting front of the far Pacific.

It is claimed by the striking union that the men leaving their jobs are doing so because "closed shop" conditions force them to pay dues to the AFL.

If this is true, the onus of sabotage of their own country, at war, must rest upon the AFL union that attempts to enforce such a rule as well as upon the men who quit their jobs.

We are at war. Every American citizen, if loyal, will fight or work or serve wherever he is put. And no minor group, AFL or CIO, has any right to exact tribute from any American worker, simply for the privilege of working for his country.

The nation as a whole will understand. And it will treat with proper contempt the men who cause interference with such an urgent necessity as the building of ships at such a time.

It will remember them as traitors to their nation. For they can be described by no other word.

Is Italy Cracking?

A recent report by a Russia says a strong organization, including all anti-Fascist and anti-Mussolini groups, is forming in Italy for the purpose of ousting Il Duce and his government and taking that nation out of the war.

Virginia Gayda, the Rome editor whose pronouncements are regarded as at least semi-official, writes that the fate of Italy is bound up with the fighting in North Africa. If this is true, Italy is, indeed, in precarious position. For the Libyan campaign is just about decided in favor of the British, with German and Italian forces there in full rout and the British mechanized columns and air forces harrying them to the final kill.

It may well be that the first crack in the Axis front will come in Italy. The people of that unhappy country have never had their heart in the fight. They have, unable to help themselves, listened to the blatings of Mussolini. They were doped with the hope of a great empire in Africa. They found it easy to overcome the primitive armies of Ethiopia, but as soon as they faced real foes—British, Greeks, etc.—the "invincible legions" proved themselves true heirs of Caporetto and Guadalajara.

Italy has, probably, lost most because of her participation in the war. She has lost more than material possessions. She has lost respect of the world, and her vaunted "invincibles" have been made into the laughing stock of the nations.

Yet Americans can never feel hatred for the average, individual Italians. For they are likeable people. If, now, they can shake off the madness that has possessed them, and return to national sanity, most of the world will be ready to welcome them back into the ranks of decent nations.

"Inward Call"

The neurotic fanaticism which motivates the actions of Adolf Hitler was demonstrated anew on Sunday when he announced to the German people that he had kicked out his top military commander, General Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch and had personally taken over command of all the German forces.

This change, he said, was in response to "an inward call" he had received, that intuition had told him it was the wise and proper thing to do.

It is irony to make the gods weep, that the tragic era in world history through which we are living should have its root in the fantasies of a mind undoubtedly warped by some strange phobia. That a man who consults with astrologers and necromancers should be able to so dupe a nation that it becomes his tool in the most stupendous outrage that gangsterism ever perpetrated is fearful testimony to the weakness of human mentality and character—in Germany, at least.

Whether this displacement of von Brauchitsch by Der Fuehrer himself indicates a definite split between the Nazi party and the army group in Germany no one outside the inner councils of the Reich can positively know. If it does mean that the army generals are in bad repute and that the Nazis are planning to "purge" them out of war authority, it is but a forerunner of the collapse of the Axis.

For there can be no doubt it has been the military genius of the Prussian officer group which has been responsible for the really remarkable victories Germany has won. Now, as the dark days come, with German armies in the east running from the Russians and with Axis forces in Africa in headlong flight in Libya, it is but illustrative of the volatile character of the Nazi that the men who have led to success after success should be disgraced when the first reverses come.

And, if this is the spirit of Germany and the Nazis, what will happen to Hitler himself when further reverses—certain to come—reveal that he is no more able to stem the avenging flood of outraged peoples? The story of Hitler may well end in bitter tragedy at the hands of his own people. His has been a career that began in the gutter, that carried the immorality of the gutter into high places of power and that, by all propriety, must end ignominiously in the gutter when the date Fate has decreed arrives.

For Victory

For more than two years the United States has designated all its activities in connection with the war as "defense." This has been literally accurate, inasmuch as everything we have done to strengthen the nations fighting the Axis has been done with the ultimate purpose of defending our own land. It has been quite plain, throughout, that if Britain went down in defeat, we should quickly become the object of Nazi aggression.

Thus the description "defense" to our lend-lease program, to everything which increased the flow of our supplies to Britain, to China and to other foes of the Axis, was indubitably correct. And, for that matter, still is. For what we are fighting is fundamentally a defense war, a defense of our way of life against the encroachment of the hateful way of the dictators. We have been attacked, we find ourselves at war with all three of the Axis powers and, unless we win that war, we shall have no defense remaining.

It would seem, however, the time has come to stop thinking solely in terms of defense, to begin thinking, instead, in terms of victory.

For victory defensive action will not do. We must have the attack, if the enemy is to be overcome.

Before we can achieve victory, we must think victory, we must devote all our strength and all our energies to the winning of that victory.

Therefore it would be the method of wisdom to stop speaking of Defense Bonds and Stamps, and buy, instead, Victory Bonds and Stamps. Let us cease our thought of war production for defense; let us turn our strength to war production for victory.

Let us, in short, realize that the one objective now before us all is victory—and after that the making of a better and more secure world for those who will come after us.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

SHOCK COMING TO JAPS WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Unless the calculations of our best technicians are wrong, unless all of our great superiority in resources and skill proves meaningless, the little brown men of Japan are in for a woefully sad awakening when American military might finally and inevitably brings the Nipponese Empire to its knees.

The Japanese have been taught for years that our western civilization here in America has become decadent. Through ignorance, or arrogance, or wilful thinking—perhaps a combination of the three—they have convinced themselves that we have become soft from a too luxurious living, that we are incapable of putting up a fight. It is a part of the philosophy Japanese children are taught in schools.

If reminded of the great scientific and industrial achievements we have rung up in this country—a record unequalled by any other nation in the world—their answer is that our decadence came with the peak of these achievements and that we are merely riding along on the momentum of the wealth we accumulated in the past.

NOT ALL BLIND Not all of the Japanese make this blind appraisal of our strength, of course, just as not all of them have been identified with the dominant warlike party. There is a considerable conservative business element within the country that has sought to maintain peaceful relations with the United States, knowing it was to Japan's best interests in the long run.

But this group constitutes a very small minority. Until the very last many of our informed higher government officials were hopeful that its influence would prevail in the end, though appreciating full well that the jingoistic warmonger element, with its cherished ambitions for setting the Japanese up as the ruling race of the Orient, was far in the majority.

The military jingoes are responsible for the juvenile teachings in Japanese schools that we represent a decadent civilization, that we have neither the physical stamina nor the spiritual determination to stand up against them.

YEARS OF TREACHERY These are the teachings that have been inculcated in the minds of Japanese soldiers for years. It must have been a shock to them, therefore, no less than to their governmental leaders, to see the failure of resistance we put up at Pearl Harbor and Manila once our forces rallied from the demoralizing effects of their sudden treachery.

It may offer some explanation of why our fleet, now on the prowl in the Pacific, has thus far been unable to make contact with the enemy.

REVEALING INCIDENT The degree to which Japanese have come to realize the truth of our position is illustrated by a recent incident related here by Reginald Sweetland, long-time Tokyo correspondent of the Chicago Daily News. He told of a candid discussion he had on the subject with a high official of the Japanese gestapo, with whom he was on friendly terms.

The Jap held fast to his theories at first, but finally was convinced that he had relied on the wrong people to give him the true picture of American internal conditions—paid agents and incompetent diplomats imbued with the same arrogant psychology. Sweetland says when he finally did become convinced, the gestapo representative sat silent, as though stunned, for several minutes. A cold perspiration broke over him at the thought of America's potential might becoming aroused.

TWO COMPLEXES Observers who have spent some years in Japan say the arrogant attitude of the little brown men results from a combination of inferiority and superiority complex, which may explain many of their bombastic characteristics. They do not like to be reminded of their lack of ingenuity in not originating any of the world's leading scientific developments, and when told that most of these achievements have come from the United States, they retreat behind the pretense that they have adopted the devices and perfected them.

The Chicago Daily News correspondent says that it is a source of constant frustration to them when we continually improve our scientific developments. GREATEST MIMICS The greatest mimics of any race, most if not all of the progress made in military arms by the Japanese have been copied from other nations. What they are doing in the Pacific now is in mimicry of Hitler's methods. The best planes they have used in the war so far have been copies of German designs. What they did at Pearl Harbor was a copy of their blow against the Russians at the turn of the century. We should have suspected it more for the same reason. The sudden surprise blow has been the dominant and only theme of Japanese military strategy for more than half a century. Their attack against us in the Philippines is said by Army men to have been copied from the same tactics we used against the Spaniards—military power when we took the islands.

The best story of Japanese mimicry relates to an order the Tokyo government made through a world-famous Scottish shipbuilding firm for a naval vessel some years ago. After examining the blueprints furnished by the firm for advance approval, the Japs returned the drawings with an explanation that they were unsatisfactory. Later the identical ship was turned out by Japanese shipyards. They had copied the drawings and built the vessel according to the pilfered engineering specifications.

CAUGHT BY OWN TRICK Later when a similar request was made for blueprints on a new vessel of improved design, the Scottish firm, remembering their first experience, jockeyed the engineering detail. The same thing happened again, except that when the Japs launched the ship it capsized in the harbor. The Scots had doctored the drawings to capsize the ship, but they did not correct their own engineers. All of this is not to say that the little brown men are an inferior race. They would have to have a certain cleverness in order to be able to copy the things they do. They have reduced it to a science.

But where they are certain to lose out in the end is through their lack of ingenuity in developing new devices. Even if they started on terms of equality otherwise with us, the lack of this quality would be sure to spell their final defeat.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

One Good Slogan. Since December 7 it seems that everybody and his sister have been trying to create a satisfactory slogan for this country at war. And, really, there is no need for any such effort. For there is one slogan that springs to every lip spontaneously, that cannot be bettered.

It is, simply, "Remember Pearl Harbor!" That is all necessary. Americans who remember Sunday, December 7, at Pearl Harbor, with all its treachery, its tragedy and its heroism, need remember nothing else. And who can forget?

Really, though, the suggested slogans that have been sent through the mails to this office range all the way from the vulgar to the absurd. And I don't think there is one of them worth the cost of the paper it is written on. A few examples:

"Nip the Nipponese." "Nuts to Nippon." "Paralyze the Peons." And, rather more awful than others, "Nihilate the Nazis."

From such a distinguished source as the college of business administration of Marquette University, from the class on advertising, no less, come some sorry specimens. This class, by the way, wants a national contest to choose a slogan and suggests various patriotic prizes for the winners.

And, to start the ball rolling, they suggest such things as: "The eagles beat for the Jewed-off sneak; we'll hang the Mikado high." "Perry opened them up; we'll shut them up."

"We'll make our bombers hum o'er the land of the rising skum." "Axe the Axis."

If they can't do better than those, the Marquette class needn't expect to win the prize it suggests.

Real Slogans Come Naturally. As a matter of fact, real slogans, those that count and mean something in public psychology, don't come out of slogan contests. They are born of the people. They

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Shooting In America NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Several telegrams have reached me signed "B. E. Thompson, editor, Nicholas Republican, Richmond, W. Va." I do not know Mr. Thompson and this is the first I have ever heard of Richmond, but the messages contain allegations which consist with similar experiences in other communities. If the charges were unique I would withhold them pending investigation but in view of past performances I have a feeling that they are pretty close to the truth.

Mr. Thompson says the Cherry River Boom and Lumber Company, of Richmond, operates one of the largest lumber mills east of the Mississippi, employs about 1,000 men, has defense orders and has received within the last week orders for direct shipment to Pearl Harbor. He says two organizations are competing for the right to represent the workers and that the CIO, with less than 10 per cent of the men, is trying to coerce the rest into joining the CIO, which naturally would not be a new approach. According to Mr. Thompson, on the day after the company declared war on Japan, 100 shots were fired from 30-30 rifles into the offices and mill and at the log trains and the shooting has continued.

"One bullet penetrated the wall of an official's home and two penetrated a public school, causing omission of school that day," Mr. Thompson reports.

Operating 100 Per Cent Governor M. M. Neely last Wednesday appealed to the lumber company in the interest of "national security" to meet with the State Labor Commission or permit him to appoint a board to "arbitrate the dispute which is preventing West Virginia from contributing her utmost to the winning of the war."

To this the company replied, "Our plant is working 100 per cent and has defense orders. Company will bargain collectively when labor board determines organization representing majority. CIO agreed to this on September 20, but broke agreement. Only trouble here is firing of high-powered rifles at our employees, offices, plants and trains."

Demand Protection The company sent telegrams to Frank Knox, secretary of the navy, saying the company and more than 90 per cent of the workers were anxious to do their American duty and asked whether the government could "restrain these saboteurs." There was another telegram to Mr. Knox, Secretary of War Stimson and J. Edgar Hoover, signed "W. H. Wilson," saying: "I have a son in Navy, last heard from at Pearl Harbor. No word since Japanese attack. Son and myself, employed in Richmond, being fired upon from ambush with rifles. Demand protection as American citizens engaged in production, national defense."

Another telegram, signed "Richwood Loggers and Lumbermen's Union," addressed to Messrs. Knox, Stimson, Hoover and Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, said: "Representing more than 90 per cent of employees Cherry River Boom and Lumber Company. We are engaged in producing national defense material and are being fired on from ambush with high-powered rifles, threatened and coerced by CIO organizers and adherents. Demand protection in our efforts to co-operate 100 per cent in national defense."

Sons in Service Mr. Thompson reports that Mr. Hoover replied that the matter had been referred to the attorney general and that Captain Adkins, U. S. N., telephoned from Washington, requesting details. He adds that in addition to the Richmond boys, many another Richwood boy has been reported killed in the attack there. Mr. Thompson, himself, has a son in the service. He says the state government agencies have passed the buck, and delays and shown sympathy for the CIO and that, only after the shooting began did the Governor appeal for conciliation or arbitration.

The CIO is now the dominant political faction of West Virginia and has made great progress in coercing the state's own employees into its ranks with the connivance of the state government, under Governor Neely. Recently, John H. Bosworth was dismissed from the position of chief of the state police force of 250 men. Mr. Bosworth said Governor Neely "told me I can't get along with labor, which he said, is antagonistic to me." His dismissal had been demanded by officials of the United Mine Workers, along with that of certain troopers who searched and confiscated firearms from pickets at Gary, W. Va., during the captive coal mine strike. Bosworth said he only did his duty of enforcing the law and maintaining peace on John L. Lewis' picket lines.

evil things, at home, without protest. But, at any rate, there are ways we can halt the $1.50 boys in their disgusting game. There are the police and laws against securing money under false pretenses.

There is the Better Business Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. If any such racket comes to your notice, you'll serve your city and nation by promptly reporting it to this bureau, which will promptly go to work to scotch the snakes.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today. From the news columns of Saturday, December 23, 1916:

"Saturday morning will witness the arrival of the long delayed cold wave and the mercury will drop to about 10 degrees above the zero mark, according to the weather man."

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

PUZZLE IN GERMANY I would give a pretty to know what is going on inside the mind of Adolf Shickelgruber.

He has taken command of the German armies. He has asked them to remain loyal. He has asked for warm clothing to be sent to the soldiers on the frozen eastern front.

His air forces have not appeared on the eastern front for two or three weeks. They have not bombed London. They are strangely lacking in Libya. There is no official report the air forces are working with Japan either in the Philippines sector or at Malaya.

It seems rather well assured that the German withdrawal from Russia ceased to become, in some sectors at least, a withdrawal and became a retreat. A withdrawal was indicated in the beginning. Now correspondents are following the Russian army and telling stories which do not substantiate the claim of a withdrawal.

It is apparent that one of two things is true: Either conditions in Germany are much worse than they seem. Or Adolf Shickelgruber has won the army over to some new plan, a smash through Turkey or a drive, in co-operation with the Spanish troops and artillery, on Gibraltar to take over the Mediterranean stronghold. It could be he has decided on a smash at England. It could be a campaign of subs in the Atlantic and a morale-bombing of New York and Washington.

I incline to the possibility of some new plan at some new front, Turkey or Spain or England.

I hope that things in Germany are much worse than we had believed. Yet it is impossible to believe it, and any ideas to that effect are born of wishful thinking.

But something is happening. And I'd give a pretty to know what is in Adolf Shickelgruber's mind.

GERMAN ARMY One wonders, until one thinks, about the German army. It never cared for Adolf Shickelgruber. It still thought of him as Shickelgruber, the Austrian Messiah who won over a people. It remembered him as a corporal. It never thought of him as Adolf Hitler, the great man. One wonders what the army will do now that the corporal, who has told the German nation, and who believes himself, that God chose him for this job, has replaced their best general with himself.

The army doesn't like it. One may be sure of that. But the army and Adolf Shickelgruber, the corporal of World War No. 1, are in the same boat. They sink or swim together. However much they dislike him, they cannot kick him overboard.

One wonders what the army will do now that the corporal, who has told the German nation, and who believes himself, that God chose him for this job, has replaced their best general with himself.

The army knows it. It is in the same boat with Adolf. For the time being, at least, they must stay there.

One wonders, though, what the soldiers think of it? And are people?

I know that they firmly believed Hitler would keep them out of war. He promised them peace. When war came, he promised them quick victories.

I keep wishing that Adolf Shickelgruber will fire a shot which would be heard around the world—in his own heart or brain. The collapse would begin. The rats would begin to leave the ship.

But it is folly to think the German war machine is run down. The planes are being assembled somewhere for another push. The trouble about being a dictator is—you can't go back.

LITTLE BROWN BROTHER Things don't look so good in the Philippines. Our Army there is showing the world how the American soldier can fight. And die. Undoubtedly, when the facts are known, we will learn there was sabotage and much Fifth Column business connected with the Japanese landings. Especially in Davao, where thousands of Japanese live.

It is disturbing to the American people to learn that a tremendous flotilla of 80 transports, carrying an approximate 1,500 men each, can be assembled and brought to the Philippine coast, off the island of Luzon, and there send its men toward the shore in landing attempts.

No one can say where our fleet is. One may be assured it is doing a job somewhere. It is disturbing. But war, like religion, requires faith. We are not well prepared in ships or planes.

It requires three weeks for ships to go from the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal, to the Philippines. We have no bases for fighter planes to cross from Hawaii to Luzon.

We'll get the little Brown Brother one of the days and we'll civilize him severely and not at all according to his liking. Meanwhile, he has the edge in the early fighting. It's preposterous, shocking, hateful, and yet true.

We've got to keep our heads, attend to our own job, and work. I still would like to know, though, what's going on in Germany and in Adolf Shickelgruber's skull!

I do so hope things are going bad with Germany and him!

Governments Invite Revolution

When One Class Is Privileged

To Ignore the Law

The disgusting thing about federal taxes is not their size or even their injustice, but the fact that congressmen and other officials know they are unjust but do nothing about it because it would be too much trouble.

The $5 "use tax" on automobiles is not to be collected—not because it is considered unjust, but because relatively few people would pay it voluntarily, and the cost of collecting it from the others would exceed the sum collected.

The business of getting tax revenue is governed only by mathematics. It is not affected by emotions or ethical principles. The idea is to get the greatest possible sum of money in the least expensive way, and avoid enraging too many voters. The ideal tax is one that soaks the rich, who are few, and is passed on to the many in the form of higher prices. Consumers pay it, of course, but don't blame the government.

I once asked a government official why tax-dodgers of a certain kind were not forced to pay. (I won't name the kind, for it might give somebody an idea.) He answered: "Because we can't collect it. We have taken many cases into court, and lost in every instance. The only thing we can do is pretend to believe what they tell us and let it go at that."

In other words, the government deliberately permits one group of citizens to dodge taxes because collecting proved too difficult. When the law goes after another kind of criminal—a killer or a counterfeiter—expense doesn't matter. It may cost $25,000 to put one man behind bars. But a tax-dodger is safe if the game isn't worth the candle.

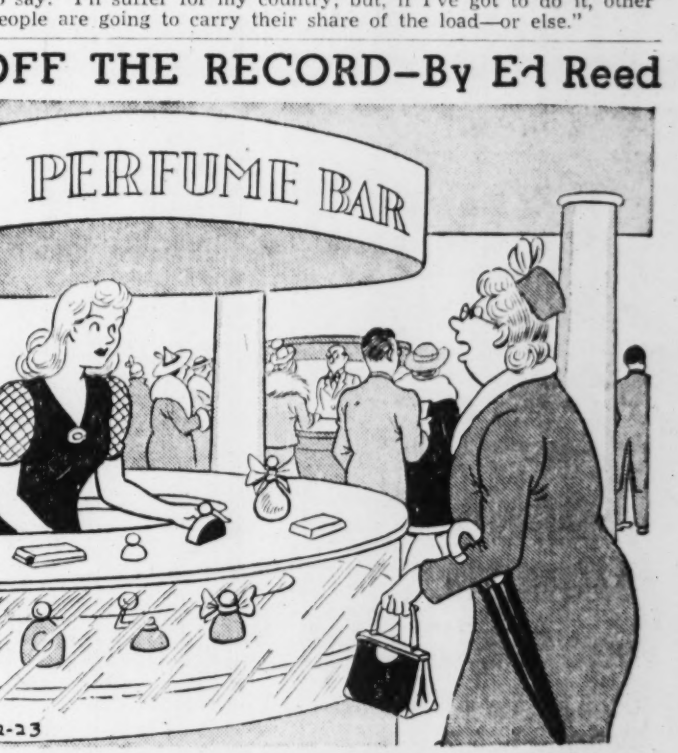

Every man in Washington knows the present income tax, as administered, is grossly unfair. It not only forces the upper middle class to bear an unfair share of the burden, but it soaks one group of this class while permitting others to evade it.

This, in effect, is the way congressmen explain it: "We know the tax is unfair. It soaks the already heavily burdened people who have fixed incomes and are reported at the source. These can't dodge. But professional men, merchants and big farmers can evade all or any part of it simply by concealing part of their income. We know they dodge, but there are many who can't and many who are afraid to risk it, so the tax is justified by the revenue it brings, even though it is unfair."

That kind of thing infuriates Americans, and they are beginning to say: "I'll suffer for my country; but, if I've got to do it, other people are going to carry their share of the load—or else."

Yule Season 'Debt Moratorium' Declared by DeKalb Civil Court

Anyone in DeKalb county threatened with a collection suit can laugh gay-heartedly for a week anyhow.

Judge Augustus M. Roan, of the civil court of DeKalb county, announced an official Yuletide moratorium yesterday. The court shuts down, today and stays shut for a week.

As a result, there'll be no dispossess notices or distress suits or garnishment proceedings. All money that is owed by a resident of DeKalb county will stay owed until somewhere along the middle of next week.

The co-operation of the civil court with the debtors of the county was announced yesterday when Judge Roan was approved by Governor Talmadge for another four years in office.

Dear Santa Claus: I do not ask that you perform some tedious task.

Or rack your dear old tired brain (work out with the terrific strain)

Of making gifts that will delight the kiddies on sweet Christmas night,

To fill my tiny Christmas tree with lots of pretty things for me.

Oh, no, dear Santa; if you please, forget the gifts and Christmas trees,

Forget the trinkets, tools and toys which you bestow on other boys

And listen to my simple plea... please send my mama back to me!

Last week she started out to shop, deserted sister, me and pop, Took all the cash that she could find nor left a single cent behind.

And, for a week, from day to day things have been going on this way.

Each pantry shelf and closet space became a secret hiding place For bundles, packages and bags tied up and bearing Christmas tags.

And since our dear old mom forsook the kitchen, where she used to cook,

A sparrow wouldn't give a tweet of thanks for what we have to eat.

As you go on your weary ways from now until the holidays Perhaps you'll see her in some store with several hundred thousand more—

Her hair is down, her eyes are wild, and in her tired arms are piled Enough bright ribbons, boxes, strings, and other sorts of useless things

To make a super-Samson weep—(or decorate a garbage heap). If so, please dump her in your sack and bring the poor old creature back.

And Christmas will be sweet and bright if mama gets back home all right.

OLLIE REEVES.

Opera—and Dogs

Metropolitan Opera Company, in New York, is well into its season and prospering, according to musical columns. It is scheduled for four performances here in the spring.

List of the operas offered in New York indicates: Americans are more sane than in World War No. 1, when popular sentiment caused the "Met" to cut out German opera—which means Wagner for the most part. The "Met" is singing Wagner as frequently as ever—with no complaints that I've heard about.

Which is well for the "Met." Because if it should eliminate German opera, it should logically go further and cut out Italian works. And French, because France is now on the other side.

Which would leave only the three or four works by American composers which were given try-outs and failed to meet popular approval. At least, at the box office. Actually, it would mean no opera at all—except a few by Russian composers. Only a few.

There is no Japanese opera to be eliminated. Oh yes, there's a beautiful one with a Japanese setting—"Madame Butterfly." But it was written by an Italian who never saw Japan.

But why ban music written years and years before the German?

Mr. Reeves Pens Letter to Santa—Bring Mama Home

mans and Italians and French were our foes? The music is still just as beautiful—and contains no propaganda.

There was, in that first world conflict, a prejudice against German dogs—of the 19th or 20th generation from the fatherland.

Which caused me to ask in a group of dog lovers whether there is a native Japanese dog? Nobody had heard of one. The Chow and the Pekinese are of Chinese origin, I understand. But do you know a Jap breed? I'd bet they are mean and treacherous little brutes who'd bite you when you weren't looking.

Dorothy Gish

This columnist and ex-critic certainly is looking forward to seeing "Life With Father" at the Erlanger on the night of New Year's Day.

One reason is that Dorothy Gish is in it. Dorothy, of the Gish sisters. Of the early picture days. Sister of Lillian, who thumped the banjo in "Birth of a Nation."

No, she's not aged and decrepit. The Gish girls hit the stage almost as infants.

In the road company of "Life With Father," we shall also see Louis Calhern, well known to picture audiences of today.

It's been running a couple of years in New York, so it must be good. Extra good!

For the first time since it was filmed, "Gone With the Wind" is on the eligible list of the movie trade magazines. Which means it may be voted upon in lists of the "best" pictures of this year.

Reason for the delay—the picture has only recently been generally released at regular prices. The eligible list does not take in pictures being "road showed" at advanced prices.

Christmas thought: About ill will toward men. Some men. If we must be in a war I'm glad it's against the Japanese. Because I can hate them with a clear conscience. I have too many German and Italian friends to let me hate all Germans and Italians. But I never had a Japanese friend—and don't want one.

Story from Missouri about an automobile knocking a locomotive off the track, but let's hope this doesn't give Christmas drivers any false ideas.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

THE RED CROSS.

What can I do? What can I do now to help my country in this unprecedented emergency?

This question is constantly in the mind of every true American; and for this fact we may truly be thankful. It is the best possible evidence that we are going to win. President Roosevelt put it well when he said: "We are now in this war. We are all in it—all the way. Every single man, woman and child is a partner in the most tremendous undertaking of our American history."

General John J. Pershing, in his letter to the President, offering his services "to the last ounce of my ability," went on to say: "All Americans today are united in one ambition—to take whatever share they can in the defense of their country."

What can I do? The answers will vary, of course, according to our respective circumstances and abilities; but there are two things we can all do—we can buy defense stamps and bonds, and we can join the Red Cross. I know of many people who are limiting their Christmas gifts to defense stamps and bonds, and that is splendid. We will keep on buying them with every extra penny and dollar we can spare. Buying defense stamps and bonds helps our country, and it helps the buyer. It is about the surest way to put aside a little money for the "rainy days" that may be ahead when this thing is over.

And now for the Red Cross. The President has asked us to raise $50,000,000 at once for the emergency work of the Red Cross in standing behind the men behind the guns and in meeting the emergencies that are inevitable in a world revolution such as we are now in. Atlanta's quota is $320,000. Decatur's quota is $24,000. Other cities throughout the state have proportionate quotas. Some communities have already gone far beyond their quotas. I confidently expect to see every community exceed its quota.

The Red Cross doesn't need any spell-binding arguments about its ministry. It has established itself in the traditions of our nation as an indispensable agency in meeting human needs, both in times of war and peace. We would no more think of facing this struggle without the Red Cross than we would with an Army and Navy. The Red Cross was on the job at Pearl Harbor the instant the Japs attacked. It will be on the job anywhere and everywhere there is a soldier or sailor on duty.

More than that, the Red Cross is today preparing the civilian population for any emergency through countless methods of training. All of which costs money. And our people are going to supply this money, and supply it quickly, through generous gifts to this emergency fund of $50,000,000; and if that is not enough, we will give more. As long as we have a dollar left, a part of it will be available for the work of the Red Cross.

What can I do now? Give to the Red Cross.

Seven Pair of Tonsils Removed in One Family

Speaking of tonsils, Mr. and Mrs. John Northcutt, of Palmetto, Ga., decided to be done with them once and for all.

So they got all their seven children together and brought them to the Georgia Baptist hospital in Atlanta yesterday.

Within a 2-hour period, doctors had clipped out all the children's tonsils.

Accidental Shot Fatal to Child

ARAGON, Ga., Dec. 22. (AP)—Twelve-year-old Billie Bennett was playing soldier with a toy pistol.

Playfully he flashed it on John D. Henderson, 22, a cousin on leave from Fort Benning.

Then Henderson picked up a similar appearing pistol from under a table and pulled the trigger while pointing at Billie, said Police Chief A. G. Hare in recounting the story today. Hare continued:

A flash came from the pistol and Billie slumped with a bullet wound in the right lung. The pistol Henderson thought was another toy was real.

En route to a hospital, Billie died. He was the son of Mrs. Mary Jones Bennett, of Rockmart.

Chief Hare said the case was "purely an accident" and no charges would be made.

Tennessee Crash Fatal To Four

BROWNSVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22. (AP)—A Nashville-bound Greyhound bus crashed into the rear of an automobile here last night, killing all four of the car's occupants.

The dead, burned almost beyond recognition when their car burst into flames, were:

J. C. Porter, 65, of Jackson, Tenn.; Mrs. Porter, 59; Robert Taylor, 31, of Fort Benning, Ga.; and Mrs. Taylor, 31, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Porter.

Occupants of the bus escaped injury as it came to an upright stop in a shallow ditch.

The four were returning to Jackson from Memphis, where they had visited a son of the Porters.

Soldiers Are Lacking To Fill Christmas Dinner Invitations

Country's Call to Duty Makes Number Available Too Small for Generous Yule Season 'Extra Plates' in Atlanta.

You can have a soldier out for Christmas dinner—if there is one to spare.

The truth is, though, the "Set an Extra Plate for Christmas" drive has been answered so generously by Atlantans there may not be enough soldiers to go around. Dr. Herman L. Turner, chairman of the Atlanta Defense Recreation Committee said yesterday.

Most of the boys at the Fort McPherson induction center already have gone to their posts for duty. Some men, who lived too far away to go home for Christmas, may be coming into Atlanta from surrounding camps, though, and these may be assigned to homes as they come in.

Yesterday, according to Bob Cobb, director of the Service Center at the Kimball House, invitations from warm-hearted Atlantans far exceeded the number of soldiers available.

More may come in today, and tomorrow, Cobb said, and the invitations will be passed on to them as they arrive. If there is a great influx of men more invitations can be filled, and anyone wishing to extend an invitation is asked to call WA. 4208.

The Service Center, where nearly 5,000 men found recreation in November, will hold a dance on Christmas Eve, and its regular dance on Saturday night.

Comes Down Chimney, Even Finds Radio to His Liking.

"A Christmas tree is the place to be," says a little squirrel who came down the chimney at the home of Mrs. Minnie Wallace at 423 Callen Circle, N. E., the other day and made his headquarters in a silvered pine tree decorated with colored electric bulbs.

Mrs. Wallace said yesterday that she had for several days been hearing noises in her chimney. She didn't think Santa Claus would be coming so early and lit the gas logs in her grate, thinking the heat would drive away whatever it might be. But the heat didn't work.

Then on Saturday she put up her Christmas tree on the hearth, turned on the red, yellow and blue lights and put cotton round the trunk for snow.

Mr. Squirrel took this for an invitation. In no time he came down to investigate and was up the three-foot tree in a jiffy. Started at first, Mrs. Wallace made friends with the little fellow by giving him a piece of toast. His excursion into the tree put out the Christmas lights and at first she thought he had a blackout in mind.

Though spending most of his time in and under the Christmas tree, the squirrel has found other objects of interest in Mrs. Wallace's sitting room. Once he even got into her radio.

Mrs. Wallace says her visitor must have come from near-by Candler Park.

You'll certainly smile again if you use Constitution Want Ads.

Five Atlantans Are Elected to Jewish Council

Leopold Haas, Meyer Regenstein Again To Serve 3 Years.

Five Atlantans were elected to the National Council of the Joint Distribution Committee, the principal American Jewish relief agency, at its conference Saturday in New York. They are Clarence S. Elsas, Joseph F. Haas, Herbert Elsas, Donald Oberdorfer and Herbert J. Haas.

Leopold J. Haas and Meyer Regenstein were re-elected for three-year terms. Other Atlanta members of the J. D. C. National Council are Henry A. Alexander, Eugene Oberdorfer, Richard H. Rich, A. J. Weinberg, Julian V. Boehm, Armand May, T. M. Weinstein and Sol I. Yudelson.

In his annual report to the conference, National Chairman James H. Becker said:

"We must recognize that prolonged trials are still in store for a large proportion of the Jewish population of the world. With that in mind, we know also that the J. D. C., the recognized American Jewish instrument of mercy, must go on in its life-saving work."

During '941, Becker reported that J. D. C. funds have been spent in 52 countries on four continents and that the organization is prepared to make an initial grant of $100,000 for the relief of 500,000 Polish Jews who have been evacuated to Siberia.

Couple Observes 50th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Eugene Lee, formerly of Atlanta, today are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary at Pine Hill, their home at Stockbridge. Their many friends sent them congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee were married 50 years ago at Stockbridge. To them were born four children, all of whom are living. Mrs. Lee's maiden name was Julia James.

The children are Mercer Lee, of Kenilworth, Ill.; Mrs. M. B. McClure and Mrs. J. W. Brewton, both of Atlanta, and Eugene Lee, of Clinton, Miss.

Troops at Texas Plant After Sabotage Attempt

LAREDO, Texas, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Soldiers stood guard today at the Central Power & Light Company's filtration plant on the Rio Grande today after a guard frustrated yesterday what District Manager Hal T. Ellsworth said was an attempt at sabotage.

Surveillance of other plants and the two international bridges was tightened.

Ellsworth said the guard fired upon two unidentified men after they ignored a command to halt as they were leaving a motor boat. They re-entered the boat and escaped.

The plant provides water for 40,000 persons.

New Year's Set Aside By F. D. R. for Prayer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today proclaimed New Year's Day as a day of prayer.

"We are confident in our devotion to country, in our love of freedom, in our inheritance of courage," he said. "But our strength, as the strength of all men everywhere, is of greater avail as God upholds us."

Therefore, he said, he was setting aside the first day of 1942 "as a day of prayer, of asking forgiveness for our shortcomings, of the past, of consecration to the tasks of the present, of asking God's help in days to come."

Mrs. Paterno Granted Divorce and $50,000

RENO, Nev., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Beverly Paterno was granted a divorce here today from Sergeant Joseph Paterno, Jr., New York real estate heir now at Camp Davis, N. C. She charged extreme cruelty.

She told reporters that an out-of-court settlement had been reached whereby she was to receive $25,000 cash and $25,000 in stocks and bonds.

Board Discharges Two State Patrol Corporals

Meeting in an executive session in the Governor's office, the State Board of Public Safety yesterday unanimously fired two corporals of the State Highway Patrol who previously had been suspended.

The discharged corporals, Safety Commissioner John E. Goodwin said after the hearing, were W. E. McDuffie, of Swainsboro, and C. A. Goins, of Villa Rica.

Goodwin said McDuffie was accused of false swearing in the trial of John A. Donaldson, Summit farmer, who was charged with driving while drunk.

The charges against Corporal

McDuffie grew out of an affidavit of Charles Baggett, of Dublin, Donaldson's brother-in-law and a Talmadge supporter.

McDuffie described it as "a typical Talmadge hearing" and added: "Goodwin just wanted me off the patrol. He's been out to get me."

'Cons' Lengthen Work Week To Balk Hitler, 'the Weasel'

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

They may be behind bars, but the boys at the Atlanta penitentiary aren't to be outdone on Christmas greetings.

In their Christmas number, a red-bound, snow-spangled issue of "The Atlantian," the inmates of the federal prison announce the inauguration of a 56-hour work week in their defense industries and send their Yuletide greetings to the world.

A picture of the somber gray walls of the prison heads a page on which they address to Mr. and Mrs. America this message: "The inmates of the Atlanta penitentiary send not only their Best Wishes for the Merriest Christmas possible and a Happy, Lucky, Secure New Year... with plenty of good news from both the East and the West, but also a Pledge of Devotion to the Nation's Interests and Our Eager Determination to Continue and Augment Our Production of War Materials. And as a Token of the Change of Our Defense Effort to OFFENSE Effort, We Offer this News... Effective Immediately, Atlanta Penitentiary's Industries Inaugurate a 56-Hour Work Week! And This Is Only the Beginning!"

Yule Greetings.
Fifty-eight other Christmas greetings to individuals are set forth on a double page tinted green and decorated with pointillism. The greetings addressed to such persons as President Roosevelt, Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood, Warden Joseph W. Sanford, John L. Lewis, Adolph Hitler and the prisoners' favorite newspaper columnists, range from the sublime to the ridiculous. There's one addressed to "The U. S. Armed Forces (who sleep under the tents we make)."

"Good cheer, good luck, good shooting and lots of the breaks that are more welcome in the right spot than decorations or promotions."

To Winston Churchill, the greeting is: "With a madman amok, and threatening ruination, 'We're lucky to have a man of your determination. 'But it's a wonder to me 'How a guy who drinks tea 'Should be able to put out this damn conflagration."

To John Edgar Hoover, the prisoners say: "A merry Christmas to a cop from prison, 'A thing very rare except at this season, 'Though you had a good share 'In baiting the snare, 'We wish you good luck... within reason."

Hopes for Themselves.
Their own hopes for themselves are set forth in the greeting to "The Penal Press" which reads: "May Santa Claus ride high and handsome on your ranges, and bring each and every one of you the gift which you want more than anything else—freedom."

The prison paper also felicitates FBI Agent Hammack, head of the Atlanta field office. Ralph McGill "and everyone working on The Atlanta Constitution, from newsboy to the big boss," Walter Winchell with a hope "that the chokes on the scandal he cooks," Joe Stalin and Attorney General Francis Biddle.

But the scribes really let themselves go on a greeting addressed to "Adolf Hitler—Sticky the Weasel."

Here it is: "For your Christmas, the heart-rending cries of a million wretched children, the miserable sobs of a million oppressed families, the heart-felt curses of more millions of human beings than have ever hated one man since the beginning of time."

Georgians Use Many Food Stamps

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 22.—Families in Georgia participating in the Surplus Marketing Administration's food stamp program spent approximately $223,888 in blue and orange food stamps during November, according to information received by the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service.

The figures are based on reports from 21 cities in the 13 southern states of the region where purchase studies are being made in order to determine the type of foods purchased with blue stamps by clients of the stamp program. Blue stamp purchases in Georgia amounted to $90,205 and the balance, $133,483 represents orange food stamps purchased by clients from the local stamp issuing office.

Pork purchases, amounting to $16,554.83, led the list of blue stamp foods. Blue stamps purchased 15,098 pounds of butter valued at $6,024.72, and 30,662 dozen eggs totaling $12,866.89. Flour, meal and hominy grits $25,354.69. Potatoes and other fresh vegetables $22,169.55. Raisins, dried prunes, oranges, fresh apples and pears amounted to $7,234.32 in blue stamps.

Americus Post Office Does Record Business

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. AMERICUS, Ga., Dec. 22.—The Americus postoffice, first class, is handling the largest volume of mail in any similar season, Postmaster Frank Chappell said Saturday.

Receipts, the postmaster said, for every month during 1941 have shown a substantial increase over months for the previous year, and through December 19, receipts for the fourth quarter showed an increase of $1,794.85 over 1940.

Sale of Defense Stamps for the first 19 days of December totaled $1,100, while the sale of Defense Bonds during the same period reached $19,256.25, purchase price.

Defense Bond sales at the postoffice and other local agencies in Americus, from January 1 to December 19 totaled more than $165,000. Although Defense Bonds actually were not placed on sale until May 1, the postmaster pointed out that all bonds purchased during the year had been converted to defense purposes.

Bruce Moran To Head Atlanta Camera Club

Bruce Moran, well-known civic leader, was named president of the Atlanta Camera Club at a recent meeting, succeeding Hal Drake.

Other officers elected are Baker Weidinger, vice president; Mrs. George T. Bird, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. H. J. Phillips, corresponding secretary. Ten directors also were chosen.

The part the club can take in defense work was discussed. The group already has had 10 of its members to enter the Signal Corps.

Georgia Bank Officers Plan 'War' Parley

State Association Calls Convention Here in February.

Georgia bankers, expecting to be called on for a supreme war effort in 1942, will hold their 51st annual convention February 11-13 at the Biltmore hotel instead of April as originally planned, Mills B. Lane Jr., president of the Georgia Bankers' Association, announced yesterday.

The announcement followed a proposal by the agricultural committee of the State Planning Board that Georgia financial institutions form a "credit pool" to finance greater production and processing of agricultural commodities.

3-Day Convention.
Lane said the convention would last three days and would combine a war council and the annual bank study conference with such business and reports by officers and committees as are customarily heard at the annual meeting.

"The purposes of this plan," said Lane, "are to bring to bear the combined power of all Georgia banks in concert of action to help win the war, and at the same time to reduce the number of meetings the members are called on to attend, thus conserving both time and money to meet the unusual demands of the day."

He said the program would be built with a view toward meeting war requirements, both through direct efforts and by means of new methods of improved bank operations.

Christmas Visits Old Folks Home

This is Sallie Harris' "thank you" note to the five "pretty ladies" who brought Christmas to her home for old folks yesterday. They just came without a bit of warning, "the prettiest people you ever seed," says Sallie, bringing everything in the world you can think of to make the old folks happy in their hearts. They brought all kinds of fruit and candy and cakes and things to wear and snuff and tobacco and cigars.

They caused so much excitement Sallie didn't have time to ask their names, nor to properly make her manners. So she just wants to say "thanks" a million times over to whoever it was that brought so much happiness to the old people at her boarding home on Houston street.

was worked out by the planning board committee in conference with Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder. Members of the committee are Robert Strickland, Atlanta banker; Wilson Williams, of Woodbury, and S. E. Vandiver, of the State Highway Board.

Agricultural Parley.
The committee will call a conference shortly of all agricultural agencies in the state and assist them in co-ordinating their efforts.

Williams said the committee hoped to aid in expanding the production of livestock and of all kinds of foods and in establishing canning, refrigeration, dehydrating and other processing plants.

Banks, insurance companies and other financial institutions will be asked to finance necessary projects, he said, "not with the idea of absorbing a loss but of earning a profit."

The committee will serve as a clearing house for information pertaining to the agricultural resources of the state, in co-operation with federal and state agencies.

New York Now Ready With Air Alarm System

Heavy Penalty Provided for Failure To Obey Wardens.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Just two weeks ago tomorrow the nation's largest city experienced its first air raid alarm—an alarm which subsequently proved baseless, but which spurred the city to a defense plan now rapidly reaching a state of preparedness for any eventuality.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia today signed a bill which provides heavy penalties—a $500 fine, six months in jail or both—for those who fail to obey safety orders from air raid wardens or others in authority in the event of a raid from the skies.

Commented LaGuardia: "When the alarm comes—I am not saying if the alarm comes—then everyone will have to co-operate by complying with instructions."

Sailor Who Yanked Nazi Flag Is Assigned to Ship
HAVERHILL, Mass., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Navy has accepted the application for re-enlistment of Harold L. J. Sturtevant, who was dismissed from the service a few months ago for pulling down the Nazi flag in front of the German consulate in San Francisco last January.

The recruiting office here, where Sturtevant applied for re-enlistment, announced today receipt of notification that Sturtevant had been accepted and already was assigned to a ship.

A little Want Ad in The Constitution does many a BIG job.

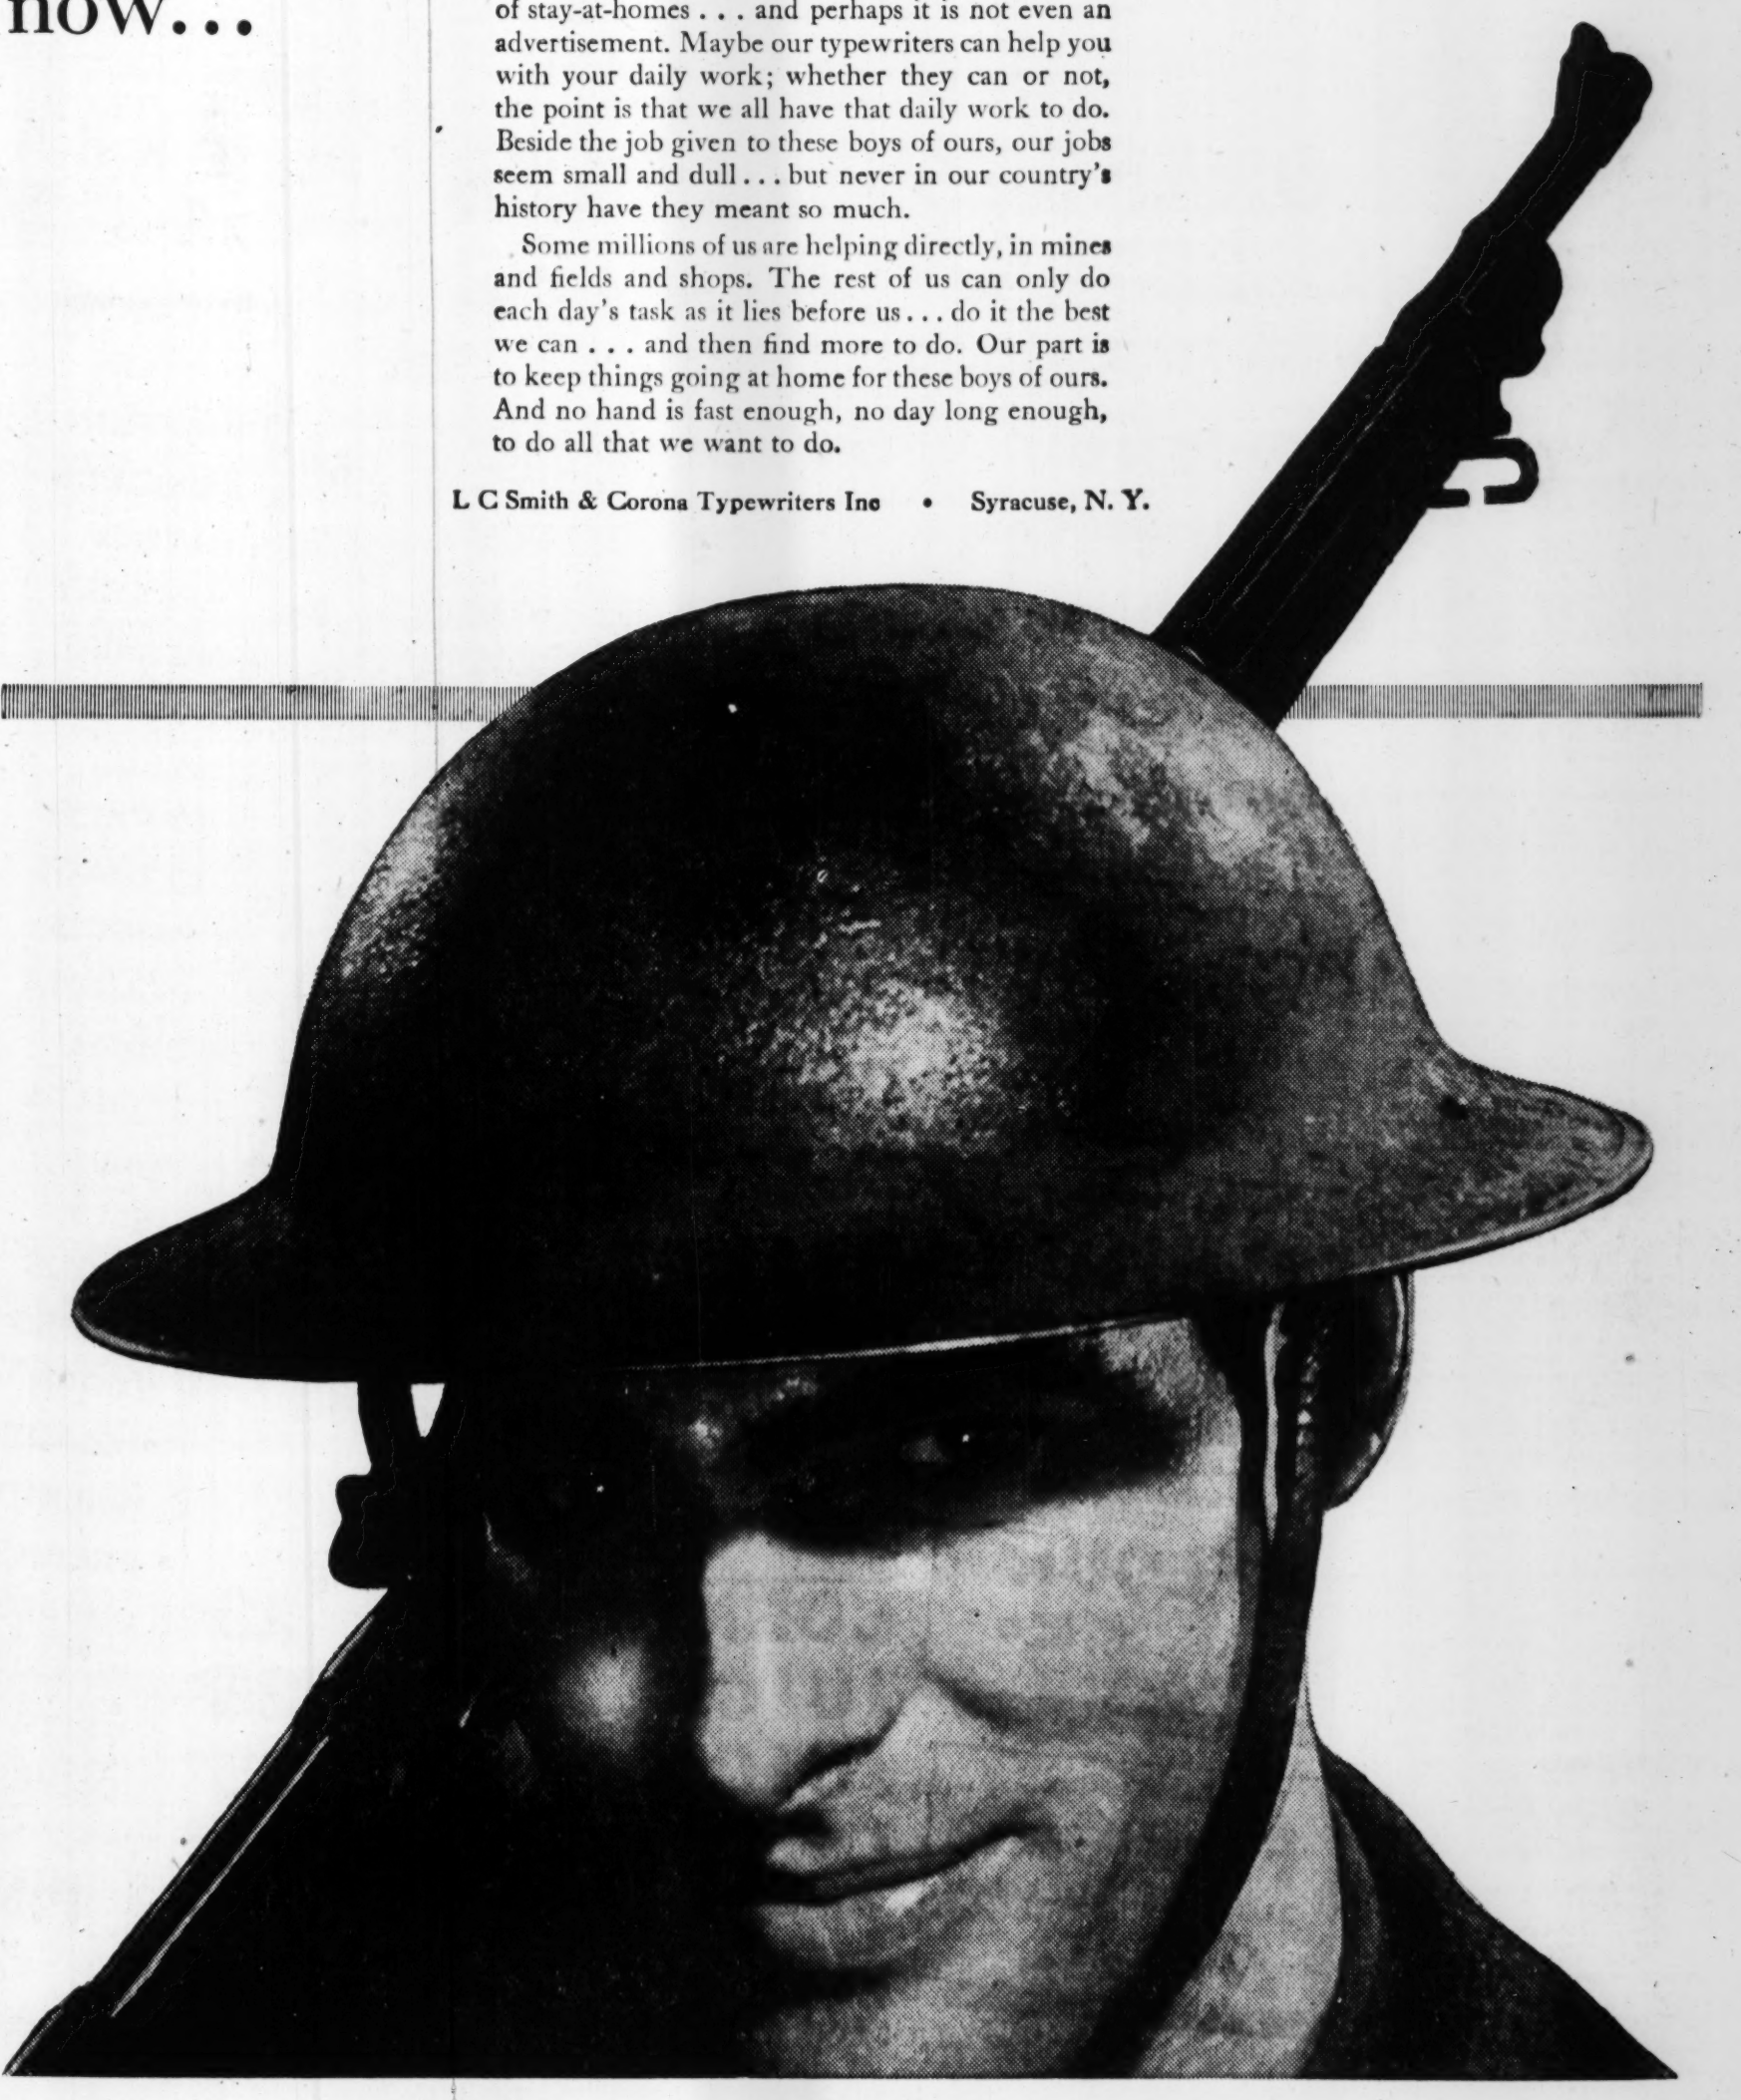

He's got a bigger job now...

TIME WAS when we could urge this boy, and thousands like him, to use our typewriters and fit himself for a better job. But he's not buying typewriters today. He's got a bigger job... the biggest job a man can have. And well he knows how our hopes and prayers march with him.

So this advertisement is not to him, but to millions of stay-at-homes... and perhaps it is not even an advertisement. Maybe our typewriters can help you with your daily work; whether they can or not, the point is that we all have that daily work to do. Beside the job given to these boys of ours, our jobs seem small and dull... but never in our country's history have they meant so much.

Some millions of us are helping directly, in mines and fields and shops. The rest of us can only do each day's task as it lies before us... do it the best we can... and then find more to do. Our part is to keep things going at home for these boys of ours. And no hand is fast enough, no day long enough, to do all that we want to do.

at the COURTHOUSE

County Commissioner Charlie Brown and Standish Thompson, of the tax assessors' office, are in charge of the county employees' group raising funds for the Red Cross.

County School Superintendent Jere A. Wells and his supervisors are assembling material for the study of air raid drills, blackout, Red Cross and Junior Red Cross work, to be placed before a meeting next Monday of the principals of Fulton county schools.

County employees received their pay checks, due on the first, yesterday.

New residence requirements for relief clients have been announced by Administrator Wellborn R. Ellis. To become eligible for direct relief in Fulton county, persons able to support themselves when they arrive in the county must be residents for a year. Persons dependent at the time of arrival must be residents for two years. A person leaving the county for six months loses residence.

Delegates, seven in number, representing Fulton county's farm communities, will meet at the Kimball house at noon today to elect the three-man county committee which will be in charge of the 1942 AAA farm program in the county.

Courthouse employees, except skeleton staffs of clerks, and those in the tax collector's office, will start their Christmas holidays Wednesday afternoon. They will return to work Monday morning. Those in the tax collector's office will quit work at noon Wednesday and have only the following day off. AAA employees in the county agent's office will have from Wednesday noon till Monday off. The Fulton county grand jury has recessed until Monday.

Miss Hastings Hostess at Tea For Her Cousin

Miss Mary Louise Hastings entertained 100 members of the sub-deb set at tea yesterday at her home on Clairmont avenue in compliment to her lovely young cousin, Miss Shirley Hastings, of Harrisburg, Pa., who is her guest for Christmas. Assisting in receiving the guests were the hostess' mother, Mrs. Donald Hastings, and the mother of the honor guest, Mrs. Ray Hastings, of Harrisburg.

The Hastings home was beautifully decorated in the gay Yuletide motif, with swags of cedar, juniper and holly outlining the doorways and alcoves. The foliage was combined with brilliant red nandina berries and red roses in the living room, and featuring the decorations in the music room was a Victorian Christmas tree of English juniper. The tree was elaborately trimmed with pleated ruffles of gold tulle which were caught at intervals with gilded sweetgum balls.

The tea table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth and adorned with a series of three lovely Rockingham compotes filled with red roses. Between the compotes were silver candelabra holding tall white tapers.

The young hostess received her guests wearing a becoming gown of pale green taffeta trimmed in iridescent sequins. The honor guest chose a gown of red and green plaid taffeta.

Assisting in entertaining were Misses Margaret Graham, Jeanette Wilcoxen, Judith Hastings, Anne Weyman, Ruth Hoppe and Betty Slaton.

Defense Council Chairman Is Well Known in Atlanta

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • MARY ROBINSON MYRICK, that erstwhile Atlantan and newspaperwoman, has accepted a colossal undertaking, but she is capable of delivering the job. Mary is chairman of the women's division of the Georgia Civilian Defense Council, having been elected to this office at a meeting held at the state capitol last week. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Robinson, her marriage to Shelby Myrick having taken her to Savannah about 24 years ago. She graduated from Girls' High school here and attended Agnes Scott College in Decatur and Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens.

Mary is president of the Colonial Dames of Georgia, and has done valiant Red Cross work in Savannah in connection with this organization. She is the charming chataleine of Wild Heroa, next to the oldest house in Georgia, which is built on the shore of the Ogeechee river about 15 miles from Savannah. Pictures of this old mansion appeared recently in Vogue and Life, with descriptive stories accompanying the photographs.

Mrs. Hinton Baker, of Augusta; Mrs. Anna Laurie Dodson, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Marcelle Robinson Rheberg, of Covington, are Mary's sisters.

Mary spent her childhood and grew to womanhood in Atlanta, and has hosts of friends here. She was connected with the defunct Atlanta Georgian, at the time of her marriage, and held a position in the society department of that newspaper. Her experience in the fourth estate should amplify her qualifications to fill the new task that Mary has accepted in the defense plans of her state and country.

• • • AMONG the most attractive newcomers to Atlanta are Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Flagler, of Hartford, Conn. Mrs. Flagler was a prominent member of the Hartford Junior League and has transferred her membership to Atlanta.

Mr. Flagler is a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Dillon Akers. They have established residence on Peachtree street and are receiving a very cordial welcome.

Their mother, Mrs. J. P. Flagler, of Providence, R. I., will spend Christmas with them.

• • • LITTLE MARGARET WOODSIDE III, better known as Peggy, will be the center of attraction at the mid-day Christmas dinner given by Clarabelle and Jack Woodside, her parents, at their Fourteenth street home. Margaret is the namesake of her great-grandmother, Mrs. John J. Woodside Sr., and her paternal aunt, Margaret Woodside Booser, of Panama City, Fla. She also bears the name of her maternal aunt, Margaret Huffman.

Margaret is only 18 months old, therefore she cannot wear the heirloom onyx pin centered with pearls and set in antique gold which will be given her by Alline Gentry Woodside, her paternal grandmother. The pin belonged to Cassandra Mansfield Gentry, mother of the late W. T. Gentry, Margaret's great-grandfather on her maternal side. He was a prominent Atlanta pioneer and was president of the telephone company.

The priceless heirloom will be placed in safe keeping until the baby grows old enough to appreciate its sentiment and value. On her maternal side Margaret is the grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. Hill Huffman, and John J. Woodside is her paternal grandfather.

State Federation President Extends Yuletide Greetings

By MRS. RALPH BUTLER of Dallas,
President of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Dear Clubwomen: Christmas, the birthday of the Christ Child, a time when all hearts should be filled with love for our fellow-men, a day in which the thoughts of the rich and poor should be attuned to the notes of kinship with all humanity.

As we look about us in this year now drawing to a close, we find the people of the world sorely tried and with heavy hearts. Can we not, during these times so filled with anxiety, recapture something of the real spirit of this day of days? As American citizens we can rededicate our lives to service; we can have a renewed faith in God, in ourselves and in our fellowmen; we can, in the midst of shopping, decorating and preparing for the holiday season, take time to consider the significance of our work, whether we are going and in what spirit we shall carry on; we can by our attitudes of helpfulness, cheerfulness and generosity take this that will live in the hearts of those we touch; we can pray that the message of old will come true, "Peace on earth, good will toward men"; we can so fill our hearts with love and a desire to fulfill His teachings that it will be a priceless gift to the King of Kings.

May each of you and your families have a blessed Christmas and face the new year with courage, with faith and with hearts ready to forgive. Remember that Christ's star has continued to shine through all the centuries since that first Christmas morn and that its comfort may still abide with us.

MISS SALLIE COBB JOHNSON.

Realistic Yuletide Setting Marks Miss Johnson's Debut

Miss Sallie Cobb Johnson made her debut last evening at the Piedmont Driving Club amid a winter Yuletide setting attained through sparkling silver, simulated snow scenes and the mystic color radiating from blue lights.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred I. Johnston, of New York city, entertained at the supper-dance honoring their debutante niece, at which the unmarried contingent of society danced to the lilting music rendered by Eddie Woodstein and his orchestra, which always plays for the St. Cecilia ball in Charleston, S. C.

Gigantic transparent candles illuminated from within, flanked each side of the ballroom to form the entrance to the end of the room. The glowing flames from these candles were encircled with shimmering silver halos and reflected the blue lights shining on the ceiling to add an attractive note to the decor.

The arches between the candles were outlined with garlands of white holly leaves starred with diamond flitters, which were centered with blue Christmas berries.

to spend Christmas with Mrs. Mark Cooper Pope at her home in the Ponce de Leon apartments.

Miss Eula Callaway, of Covington, is visiting Miss Joanne Dorman. The belles are classmates at Sullins College in Bristol, Va.

and balls, as well as with blue electric lights.

Snow-covered Christmas trees were posed against the blue backdrop studded with silver stars of various sizes, and placed against the wall spaces between the graceful arches. Each star was centered with blue lights which shone and twinkled continuously in the heavenly blue skies.

The winter landscape at the eastern end of the ballroom featured a magical snow scene posed against a silver curtain studded with blue stars that were illuminated from within. Snow-capped mountains rising to majestic heights in the background, and white Christmas cedars seemingly growing in the foreground, and artistic effects in a realistic and effective arrangement of white snapdragons and gladioli beautified the buffet tables overlaid with silver cloths, and white tapers gleamed in silver candelabra.

Ropes of silver smilax garlanded the skirts of the cloths on the buffet tables. The crystal punch bowls were adorned at the bases with silver smilax and were placed upon silver cloths.

Mr. and Mrs. Barton, Miss Johnson, and her mother, Mrs. Ashley S. Johnson, received their guests standing before a silver backdrop which was flanked with an arrangement of ferns and standards filled with white flowers. The wall niches were glorified with alabaster standards filled with white flowers, and blue and silver designs hung above the niches.

Potted plants, exotic orchids and baskets filled with flowers, sent to Miss Johnson by a host of admiring friends, testified to her popularity and the affectionate interest they held in her debut.

Regal-looking Mrs. Barton wore a white crepe gown richly embroidered in silver bead design and she wore white orchids on her shoulder.

The blond beauty of Miss Johnson was enhanced by the becoming white tulle model designed for her by Herman Tappe in the "Gone With the Wind" period. The off-the-shoulder bodice was trimmed with clusters of white ostrich tips sprayed with silver, which were fastened at her shoulders. The bouffant skirt made of layers of tulle and trimmed with clusters of silver-sprayed white ostrich tips was posed over a white satin and hoop-skirt foundation. She carried a fan-shaped bouquet of white orchids cascaded with small white orchids, and the handle was tied with white tulle. She chose her only brother, Ashley S. Johnson Jr., for her partner for the first dance.

Mrs. Johnson was gowned in a white crepe model, heavily encrusted with a gold design, and her flowers were white orchids.

Mimi Miller, Zaida Clay, Anne Owens, Carol Smith, Joan Smith, Mary Cronk, Sally Prescott, Marguerite Emmert, Patricia Gunning, Henece Wilson, Sally Pat Connolly, Clara Jones, Barbara Wilson, Adavale McDougall, Mary Alice McDougall and Helen Beaudry.

It will mark Ella's second appearance here since the death of Chick Webb two years ago, and local followers of Fitzgerald music are looking forward to her holiday return.

Complete Conscription Status Reached by British Dominions

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The British Dominions are now on a complete conscription basis for home defense and are expected by military authorities to bolster the empire's force with approximately 1,500,000 men at home and abroad. All able-bodied males are being compelled to take some part in home defense, and it is estimated that nearly half of these have volunteered for service abroad.

In Australia part-time militia training has been extended to full-time, and the country has about half a million men in service or training at home and overseas. A volunteer women's army corps has just been enrolled to release men for the fighting services.

Canadians also have about 500,000 men under arms, undergoing training or filling home defense roles. Half of the total is reported here to have volunteered for fighting overseas.

Out of South Africa's 2,000,000 European population, about 10 per cent have been called up under the militia ordinances of 1912 and 1922 under which all males from 17 to 60 are liable to service, those between 17 and 25 being given training during four consecutive years. New Zealand has just finished a lottery for conscription of single men and now is combing through the married men up to 40. The country has about a third of its male population of 600,000 either fighting or getting ready to fight.

'Spike' Nelson Resigns as Yale Grid Coach To Accept War Post

WARD INDUCTED.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 22.—(AP) Marvin (Bud) Ward, national amateur golf champion, was inducted into the U. S. Army Air Corps today and assigned to Fort George Wright, second air force headquarters, for his initial training. Ward enlisted last week.

Will Burton To Go 'Home' This Morning

A heart that beat only for Georgia Tech and her football players beat its last time Saturday, and today out at the Flats many's the heart that will be heavy in knowing Will Burton is being paid in his last resting place.

Many's the grid stalwart who has listened to the homespun philosophy of Burton during the 36 years the aged Negro served Tech teams as water boy and handyman. And many's the eye that will moisten from the knowledge that the beloved colored man is being laid to rest in Southview cemetery after funeral ceremonies at the Cosmopolitan Methodist church beginning at 10 o'clock this morning.

The church where the funeral services will be held is on Bryan street just off West Hunter and Vine streets, near Atlanta University. Burton succumbed to a heart ailment from which he has been suffering for several years.

PELICAN SOLD.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 22.—(AP) The New Orleans Pelicans today announced the sale of Averette Thompson, outfielder, to Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League.

Call in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Can't Work Too Hard There is not much doubt that Commissioner Mike Conner has forgotten his days in football, which, I understand, were limited.

Had the commissioner engaged in the game for any length of time he would never have charged Southeastern Conference coaches with working players too hard.

Of all the games that boys and young men play, the most exacting is football. It's tougher than prize fighting, by far. It actually requires the stamina of basketball, which basically is a noncontact game.

The boy who is in shape for football and able to keep going at top speed is rarely injured. He now and then gets hurt by accident, such as Frank Sinkwich suffering a broken jaw, Johnny Bosch sustaining a knee injury and George Poschner falling out with a broken arm.

A boy must work hard, or be worked hard, to play football. And he hardly can work too hard. Practice is drudgery. All who play or have played the game know that. But it is necessary. It is just as necessary as war maneuvers.

A football player has to be harried for the 60-minute Saturdays. He's got to be ready to go steadily from whistle to whistle.

Commissioner Conner either was ill-advised or took it on his own hook to speak out on a subject that has slipped his mind a bit.

Just like a baseball pitcher, a football player can't be drilled too much. There is no substitute for stamina. And stamina comes only with hard practice.

Quick Success Del Morgan's Texas Tech football team, upset by Miami U. in mid-season, didn't lose another game and is to play in Arizona's Sun Bowl against Tulsa.

Old Del has done very well on his own. He took over Texas Tech last spring after Pete Cawthon resigned. And he had every right to go through the season undefeated. Miami played an inspired game and caught the Techsters flat-footed.

"We had no right to beat them," Coach Jack Harding, Miami, declared afterwards.

After leaving Auburn, Morgan went to Rice as line coach under Jess Neely. The Texas Tech job offered a better opportunity and success came his way in one year's time.

Conference titles don't matter any more. A coach's success is measured largely by the number of bowl games to which his team is invited.

In Short Recalling the row with Umpire Magerkurth, late in the season when the Dodgers were fighting for a pennant, Leo Durocher told Taylor Spink recently: "I got down to the dressing room and it seemed I was only there about ten seconds when I heard the clump of feet behind me. I couldn't believe it when they told me the Pirates got the winning run, and we went out in order in the ninth. I asked: 'How did they get the winning run?' And when they said Anderson tripled, I almost fainted. Anderson hits off his front foot like he's waving a wand. I know I was no Ruth up at that plate, but I never could have looked as bad as Anderson. When they said he tripled, I buzzed: 'How did he get a triple—did he hit the ball into a hole?'"

Shirley Povich (Washington Post) says: "Cecil Travis' feat of driving in 101 runs for the Nats last year is the more amazing in that he didn't have a .300 hitter in the lineup ahead of him."

Lieutenant Ted Mann, for many years public relations head at Duke and now a naval attache at old Camp Gordon, is certain Wallace Wade was misquoted when he hailed Steve Lach as the greatest back he had ever coached. "He never said any such thing," Mann declared. "But he does have a high regard for Lach because of the way the big fellow blocks."

Earl Holden, of the Capitol theater, walked into the office with a 750-pound bear and blandly asked if we had a parachute. Then he invited us to wrestle. "Big Boy," the bear, will appear on the Capitol stage after Christmas Day. He is a Russian bear and a strong critter. This I personally attest after submitting to two bear hugs. I'd much rather take on Holden, who leans to portliness.

The same night Russell and Boys' High football teams were feted here last week, Coach Wallace Butts was the principal speaker for the Elks' annual banquet honoring the Decatur High team.

Elis Captured 1 of 8 Games In '41 Season

Mentor Cannot Pass Up Chance To Serve, He Says.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Emerson W. "Spike" Nelson resigns today as head coach of the Yale football team which won only one of its eight games during the past season.

Golden Miller, Yale athletic director, said Nelson had written him a letter saying:

"I have resigned my position at Yale to be free to join the staff of the procurement department of the United States Engineer Corps in Philadelphia. I leave Yale with regret, but in these times of national stress I cannot refuse the opportunity to serve which has come to me."

The resignation is effective January 1.

Miller, who recently told a group of Connecticut sports writers that "there will be no change in the head football coaching position for 1942," was en route to Chicago to address a Yale alumni father and son dinner when the announcement of the resignation was made. Nelson, holder of a Ph.D. degree, was an outstanding tackle at the University of Iowa and came to Yale three years ago after a year as head coach at Mississippi State college.

Defense Bonds To Be Prizes For Bowlers

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 22.—(AP) America's bowlers, under a plan proposed today by Elmer Baumgarten, of Milwaukee, secretary of the American Bowling Congress, would contribute at least $10,000,000 to the defense bond and stamp fund within the next six months.

The chief of the A. B. C. said all prizes at the 1942 national tournament, starting here March 3, would be paid in defense bonds and stamps, and that the total would soar over the $300,000 mark, possibly approaching a half-million.

Baumgarten said the A. B. C. was leading a move to have leagues in every city in the United States use defense bonds instead of cash in awarding prize money.

"With 16,000,000 bowlers in the country, I think I am conservative in saying the sport will contribute at least $10,000,000 in defense stamps and bonds within the next six months," Baumgarten said.

"There are some 19,000 leagues operating in America, and their prize money will average more than $500. That's almost $10,000,000 right there—and that's why I say my figure is conservative."

6 Strokes Better On Second Try

Brother, you'll have to go a long way to beat this one.

J. L. Mobley has been playing golf 6 weeks. Yesterday he played at College Park. On his first trip around the 9-hole layout, he had a 7 on the 6th hole. The second time around he scored a hole-in-one on that hole. He sank a 2-iron shot on the 175-yarder. With him was L. L. Daniel.

Pitt's Upset Win Over Rams Voted 1941's Biggest Surprise

Picard Cards 266 To Annex $5,000 Event

Henry Fires 66-69 on Last Day; Harrison; 2d, Demaret 3d.

HARLINGEN, Texas, Dec. 22.—(P)—Steady Henry Picard, of Oklahoma City, won the $5,000 Rio Grande Valley open today with a 266 total for the 72 holes of play.

Picard had a 66-69 today to put with his 131 for the first two days of play.

In second place with 268 was E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, of Little Rock. Jimmy Demaret, of Detroit, finished third with 269.

The Business Opportunity column in the Want Ads of The Constitution furnishes a fertile field for small investment and profitable effort.

Texas Team's Up and Down Year Second

Conn's Showing Against Louis Third; Bay View's Victory 4th.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(P)—There are at least 200 good reasons why the best horse in a race can lose, and even more explanations for the defeat of the best football team. Nevertheless, the sportswriters who report those happenings can't get over the habit of being surprised when they take place.

Baseball, boxing and other sports also contributed their share of surprises in 1941; but, in the minds of 84 sportswriters participating in the annual Associated Press poll, the doings on the gridiron topped them all.

Pittsburgh's 13-0 triumph over the Fordham Rams on November 8—after Fordham had won its first five games and Pitt had lost as many—caused the greatest amount of amazement. Thirty-eight of the voters picked that as the No. 1 surprise of the year and others named it second or third for a total of 144 points.

TEXAS SURPRISING. The performances of the great Texas football team—in being tied by Baylor and defeated by Texas Christian and then resuming its attitude of invincibility in that 71-7 triumph over Oregon—put the Longhorns in second place with 16 votes for first place and a point total of 84.

Stanford, Oregon State, the Green Bay Packers, Notre Dame, Texas A&M, Duquesne and Army footballers all were mentioned prominently as providing football surprises.

Third place in the voting tabulation went to Billy Conn for his showing against Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, when he looked like a winner for 12 rounds before the Brown Bomber went boom. Billy drew four firsts and 39 points, which made his fighting nearly twice as amazing as Bay View's victory in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap. That race was worth three firsts and 21 points.

GHEZZI WON P. G. A. Golf's biggest surprise was Vic Ghezzi's P. G. A. triumph, considered worth 19 points in the voting. The Yankees' victories in the American League pennant race and the World Series drew 18 points and the first-place votes of two writers (apparently National Leaguers). Squaring that account, Brooklyn's National League victory also was given two first-place votes and 12 points.

Other major surprises included Stanford's football collapse (15 points), Buddy Brier's showing against Louis (14), Attention's defeat of Whirlaway in the Arlington Classic (11), Red Cochrane's welterweight title triumph (9), the collapse of the Cincinnati Reds (8), and Lou Boudreau's appointment as manager of the Cleveland baseball club (6).

Tropical Ticket Sellers Watch Wooden Nickels. MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 22.—(P)—The men who sell mutual tickets at Tropical Park race track here shouldn't let many wooden nickels or bogus bills get by them this year.

Before the track season opened Saturday they received instructions from a United States Treasury Department secret service agent on how to detect counterfeit money.

RAMS PASS THROUGH—Fordham's once-beaten Rams, who meet Missouri's once-beaten Tigers in the Sugar Bowl, January 1, paused in Atlanta last night en route to their training site near New Orleans. Left to right are Don Brennan, Coach Jim Crowley, Al Santelli, Joe Kovach, Sesto Santerelli and Ed Shedlosky. All except Crowley are players. The Rams looked big and ready and Coach Crowley promised Sugar Bowl fans a spectacular game.

Dudley Named First Choice By Pittsburgh

Bears Get First Crack at Albert; Cards Pick Duke's Lach.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—(P)—The champion Chicago Bears obtained first right to negotiations with Frankie Albert, Stanford's all-American quarterback, in the annual National Football League draft today.

Albert, if he chooses to play pro football with the Bears, would follow a pair of former teammates, Norm Standlee and Hugh Gallenau, from one T-formation club to another.

Bill Dudley, the University of Virginia's all-American back, was Pittsburgh's Number One choice, while another member of the all-American backfield, Bruce Smith, of Minnesota, was named by the Green Bay Packers. The Packers' first choice, however, was Urban Odson, also of Minnesota.

Philadelphia's Number One selection was Pete Kmetovic, one of Stanford's fine backs, while Cleveland named Jackie Wilson, back from Baylor University.

Bill de Corvenot, of Northwestern, and Urban Saunders, of Texas, both backs, were named by Washington, while Detroit's opening choice was Bob Westfall, Michigan's fine fullback. The Lions also named Alf Bauman, brilliant Northwestern tackle.

The Chicago Cardinals picked Steve Lach, of Duke, as their first choice, and followed up with another star back, Jack Crain, of Texas.

The pro league draft system gives a club the exclusive right to negotiate with college players who have, or will shortly, finish their terms of intercollegiate competition.

THE STANDOUTS

LOS ANGELES.—Who will be the standout actors in the coming bowl games, plus the charity contests at New Orleans and Montgomery, Ala.?

Attempting to tag the right parties in advance is always a big risk for the prophet to take, but it is always worth shooting at. Last winter the two supposed to steal at least two of the shows were Tom Harmon and John Kimbrough. Yet neither was able to take over the starring role at San Francisco or at Dallas. This alone shows you how quickly the tides can change.

Here is a brief advance summary of leading candidates:

ROSE BOWL AT DURHAM, N. C.—Steve Lach, of Duke, and Bob Dethman, of Oregon State. Lach is Wallace Wade's best all-around back, rated by Wade as one of the greatest he ever saw or ever coached. Lach can pass, run, block and tackle. He is equally at home on defense or offense. Dethman, on a good but a starless team, is rated the western pick in the matter of impending headlines.

COTTON BOWL.—Dorcas Moser, of Texas A. & M., is the one to watch from the Texas viewpoint at Dallas. He is Homer Norton's big ace, and his passing will be a constant threat against Alabama. Moser was the main party in the Aggies' great season that carried only one defeat in 10 starts. Jimmy Nelson will be the Alabama nominee, although Holt Rast at end may crowd the halfback closely. Nelson is a fine all-around back, and has been for three years. The Moser-Nelson duel is expected to feature the Cotton Bowl roundup.

The Two Other Bowls

SUGAR BOWL.—This will give the guessers more trouble than any of the others. Fordham can offer Jim Blumenstock, who starred at Dallas a year ago; Steve Filipowicz, one of the most valuable backs in football; Joe Androsko and George Cheeko, two big, fast sophomore backs who have been improving steadily. My guess here would be Filipowicz, passer and ball carrier, when the time comes to bother Missouri's Tigers.

Missouri has three star backs in Bob Steuber, Harry Ice and Maurice Wade, plus a brilliant center in Darold Jenkins. Jenkins is likely to be the day's best lineman. From the three Missouri backs I'd gamble on Steuber, a big, hard-hitting, fast-moving back who will keep Fordham's defense busy all afternoon.

ORANGE BOWL.—Georgia's nomination is Frank Sinkwich, about as fine an all-around back as any team could show. Tuss McLaughrey, of Dartmouth, thought Sinkwich was one of the best backs he had seen in many years. Georgia, however, has other fast backs who may suddenly steal the spotlight while Sinkwich is being too well covered. This is a point to consider. The outstanding stars will get the bulk of the attention from the other side.

Texas Christian will offer Kyle Gillespie against Sinkwich. Dutch Meyer rates his Texas star as one of the most valuable men he has had in a long time.

"Injuries held him back," Dutch writes, "but he is all right now. If he is right, don't go overboard on Georgia."

The Outsiders

It isn't always the all-season stars who take full charge of these post-season scrambles. The fact that neither of such heretofore backs as Harmon and Kimbrough could reach top ranking a year ago is proof enough that many bizarre incidents can take place as outsiders, minus the autumn's noisy fanfare, grab the torch. If I had to gamble on the one best bet—which, fortunately, I

Mr. John Jones' Dog, Hitler, Takes After the Original

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

One of Mr. John Jones' two liver-colored setters is quite a character, if a dog may be called that.

Mr. Jones lives near Griffin, Ga., and consented to take Mr. "Peanut" Banks and me on a quail shoot last Saturday. But the whole thing developed into a study of this particular dog's habits.

To begin with, his name is "Hitler." But Mr. Jones explains that to our satisfaction. "From his birth," he says, "this dog was the meanest thing to his brothers and sisters I have ever seen. He would eat all his food, then start on theirs, and when one of them would protest he would make a gallant attempt to chew his neck off."

"He was born about this time this German fellow named Hitler was doing just that to the Poles and Czechs and those other fellows. So I just named this dog 'Hitler.'"

But the most interesting thing about Hitler is that he is something of a one-man dog. We started hunting with him and Boots, a veteran setter bitch.

Boots went to work right off and found a covey after a half-hour. But Hitler took things easy, didn't get in on the find and didn't seem very impressed with the whole thing.

"He doesn't think we're hunting," Mr. Jones remarked. "He has never been with anybody but me and he don't think anybody else hunts. But I'll teach him better."

So saying, Mr. Jones planted his right foot into Hitler's rear with the words, "Get to work, you rascal."

The change was startling. Hitler, who surely had been loafing in the best dog store cowboy manner, sprang into action.

It would be fitting to say he found four coveys in the following two hours. But he didn't. It was our misfortune to be right behind some hunters who scattered every covey we hunted. But if they had been there, Hitler would have found them. Mr. Jones said so. And Mr. Jones knows because he's been raising and training bird dogs for years. Maybe it would be a good idea if we could get Mr. Jones to plant a right foot into the rear of the other Hitler.

WALTHAM CITY LEAGUE.
The Waltham City League will complete its sixth round of play tonight at Warren Sports Arena with the Dixie-Royal Crown and Central Cafe-Jonesboro skirmishes topping the big four-game program. The Crown-Steel tussle is booked for 10 o'clock, while Jonesboro and Central will meet at 9 o'clock.
In the other two tilts, General Shoe, undefeated in its first five starts and co-leader with Central Cafe, tangles with Four Square in the opener at 7 o'clock and Georgia Power tangles Gasco at 8 o'clock.
Central Cafe's big Red outfit, which is scheduled to meet the Neil Reds in the feature game on the Naismith Memorial program Saturday night at the new Henry Grady gymnasium, may have quite a bit of trouble in subduing Jonesboro's battling quintet. Coach Bender, a former Columbia University performer, has done wonders with the Jones boys since the opener and it may be that he has cooked up a way to halt the high-scoring Reds tonight in their last start; the Central piled up 81 points, a league record.
TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE.
7 O'clock—Four Square vs. General Shoe.
8 O'clock—Georgia Power vs. Gasco.

New Mentor Was Backfield Tutor in 1941

One-Time Middle Quarterback Takes Over This Month.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Commander John E. Whelchel, U. S. N., of Washington, D. C., was named head football coach of the U. S. Naval Academy today, succeeding Major Emory E. (Swede) Larson, United States Marine Corps.
Captain T. Starr King, Naval Academy athletic director, said the new gridiron mentor would assume his duties some time this month.
Larson, head coach since December, 1938, recently was ordered to report to the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., next month.
Whelchel, executive officer of the academy's ordnance and gunnery department, was backfield coach this past season.
Whelchel said he did not contemplate changing the academy's present football system.
The new coach, one of Navy's smartest quarterbacks in his playing days, came here last July after commanding the U. S. S. destroyer McCall.
He played football, baseball and basketball at the academy, graduating in 1919. He was a member of the Navy eleven of 1916, 1917 and 1918 and a teammate of Commander L. S. Perry, U. S. N., the academy's graduate manager of athletics.
Whelchel was assistant coach here in 1919 under Gilmore Dobie and under Heach Coach Bob Folwell from 1920 to 1924. He piloted the Plebes here in 1926.

Father of Navy Coach Attended U. of Georgia.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 22.—John E. Whelchel, named head football coach at Annapolis today, is a son of the late John Estlin Whelchel and Mrs. Lula Longstreet Whelchel, of Washington, D. C., and was reared in that city, according to members of the family here. His father attended the University of Georgia before moving to Washington.
His paternal grandfather was Aaron Whelchel, of Hall county. His maternal grandfather was the late General James G. Longstreet, famed Confederate leader. He is a nephew of the late Ben H. Whelchel, Gainesville banker, and of Mrs. Dr. R. E. Park.

RAIN SLOWS TIDE.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Rain forced Alabama griders inside today and the Tide went through general calisthenics and a lengthy running session in preparation for the Cotton Bowl match with Texas A. and M.

STILL SMILING—Billy Wilson, pro at the Bobby Jones course, is the victim for the second time this year of a freak accident, but the genial golfer is still smiling. Last week while walking to work, Billy coughed and then collapsed. After another collapse he was taken to the clubhouse, later transferred to Piedmont hospital, where it was found that he had separated vertebrae. Now Billy will have to remain taped up in bed for a couple of weeks. Last summer he was struck by a golf ball while teaching.

Every Play Is Scoring Try, Says Frog Coach

'Opposition Will Insist on Messing Up' Some, Dutch Meyer States.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Dec. 22.—The Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University—a name to conjure with in the world of gridiron exploits!
But why "Horned Frogs"? Well, in the first place, the animal isn't a frog—it's a lizard. It doesn't hope, it runs. It never goes near water, but thrives on the plains of the great southwest. It is about the size of a frog, all right, but bristles all over with those horned growths that are characteristic of the lizard family.
Way back some 45 years ago, when T. C. U. first began to play football, some interested person set about to devise a name for the team. Longhorns, Miners, Cowboys, Bears, Indians and most of the other obviously appropriate names had already been claimed by other southwest schools. T. C. U. wanted a name that was different. Someone thought of this belligerent-looking lizard that roamed the prairies and hills. The name Horned Frogs was suggested, and it caught on.
NOT RECKLESS.
The term "razzle-dazzle" creates a picture of a football team tugging the ball around all over the field, taking all kinds of reckless chances and paying little attention to the fundamentals of the game. Well, no southwest team plays football that way.
As regards T. C. U. specifically, about the only difference the Orange Bowl crowd will note is that it is seeing an eleven that is willing to pass any time, anywhere.
Coach Dutch Meyer regards the forward pass as an entirely legitimate offensive weapon, but something to be used as a last resort when the ground game won't go—which is the way the pass is used by many coaches.

Sammy Baugh is nationally known as one of T. C. U.'s greatest passers. His most successful pass play was on second down with about a yard or two to go. Any "orthodox" team would make the ground play and try for the short gain and the first down. The defensive club would draw in close to prevent just that from happening. Vaughn would call a pass, and—wham! A big gain most of the time; a touchdown a lot of times.
If passing deep in your own territory is "razzle-dazzle," the Orange Bowl fans will see some of it New Year's Day. But they won't see any reckless tossing of the ball all over the field. They will see a blazing offense that tries for touchdowns.
"What's your best touchdown play?" a visiting high school coach once asked Coach Meyer.
"Every play we have is a touchdown play!" Meyer replied. "The only thing that keeps them from working out that way is the fact that the opposition will insist on messing up the plays!"

Bulldogs Plan 3 More Drills; Depart Xmas

Sinkwich Expected To Play Full Game Against T.C.U.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 22.—Three more fairly light workouts are on schedule for Georgia's Orange Bowl-bound Bulldogs before they take off Thursday night for Miami, where they play Texas Christian University on New Year's Day.
Coach Wallace Butts said he would save most of the rough work until after "we get in the sunshine." That means all the scrimmaging for the T. C. U. game will probably be done in Miami.
The Bulldogs had another hour and a half drill this afternoon, working on defense, and a similar drill is slated for tomorrow.
Coach Butts said he is well pleased with the spirit that his boys are showing, and predicted a thrilling game with the mighty Texans.
The same lineup which saw duty in the Tech game will be used to start the T. C. U. tussle, and some of the boys are due for 60-minute performances.
Alternate Captain Cliff Kimsey and All-American Frankie Sinkwich are the backs due for overtime duty. In the line, Van Davis, George Poschner and Duck Conger will have to divide the time at ends.

Down the Alleys

The ten-pin tourney scheduled to run at the same time as the big National Defense Bond Duck-pin tournament, will offer a $25 bond as first guaranteed prize and all games will be bowled at the downtown alleys at 7:30 each night starting Christmas night and running through December 31.
No handicaps will be used—every bowler competing from scratch. Entries are being accepted at the downtown alleys and the entry fee will be $1 plus cost of games. A bowler may bowl as many times as he wishes, but can win only one prize. As many prizes will be added to the big first prize as the number of entries warrants.
Entries received so far include Louie Outler, W. F. Lowry, Bob McCoy, Ed Pearce and F. E. Huckaby.
High scratch sets in last Saturday night's Little Defense Bond tournament were Lowry, Whisenant with 826; Ed Pearce with 618, and Joe Chambliss with 612. For the first time in many years, and plenty of alleys are available for practice at all hours. This includes the usually crowded time of 7:30 p. m. Call for reservations if you have a party of more than three people.

Ward Goes Into the Cave To Shield Joy

By
ARNOLD

SYNOPSIS. Polly McMurray is a raven-haired, bronzed girl of the wide open spaces. She is a senior at Frontier University, a college for girls near the McMurray ranch. Dr. Kenyon Thomas Palmer has just been named president of Frontier and when he arrives at the school he brings along his son, Ken, tall, handsome and in his early twenties but very beautiful. Polly and her brother Ward take Ken under their wings and are trying to acquaint him with western ways. Ken has been granted special permission to become the only male student at Frontier. Joy Kallury Boone, wealthy glamour girl and orphan from Bar Harbor, New York and points east has decided to transfer to Frontier. She makes a dramatic forced landing in her private plane on the McMurray ranch after her secretary, Bettina Carlson, falls out and finds a safe landing. Doctor Palmer, an immediate interest in Miss Carlson and anxious to make Joy happy at Frontier, Polly, Ward and their father, Buck McMurray, ranchman and trustee of the university, are co-opted by Doctor Palmer in making Joy content for the good of the school. But Polly feels a pang of jealousy when Joy demonstrates an unusual interest in Ken. A climax is reached when Joy tells Polly that she is in love with Ken and thinking of marrying him.

INSTALLMENT XXXIII

"Where's Joy?" Ward demanded, frantic.

"She was ahead!" Glenn replied. "Made a short cut when she saw the dogs had circled."

Ward had his 45 pistol out now, and he ran to the cave hole where the dogs were making such a disturbance. At once he saw Joy Boone crouched down there, and he became momentarily petrified from what he knew to be true. He just stood there staring, incredulous, terrified with fear and for her.

Something in a man like Ward McMurray, however, carries on even when extreme emergency confronts him. He wasn't consciously thinking, but intuitively he knew that his gun was of no value here. You can kill any lion with a pistol shot, whereas one or two pistol bullets usually serve only to infuriate a bear! Nevertheless, he took action immediately.

He kicked the nearest dog, sending it away whimpering. Motions at the others scattered them. He stooped down.

By this moment James Glenn was snapping photographs. Ward didn't even see that. Ward made one foolish attempt to reach his hand down and lift Joy, foolish because the 10 foot distance was too great. She had seen him. She looked up, pale with fear.

"Take it easy!" he ordered. "Don't move! I'm coming!"

Then the gallant young man slid down into that hole with her. He had holstered his gun.

"W-Ward!" she murmured, when he crept near through the dried leaves and trash on the cave floor. "It's—"

"I know! Bears. Joy! Don't move. It's a mother with big cubs. We couldn't even climb out. Stay behind me. Shut your eyes!"

Before she knew what he was doing, he had taken a match from his pocket and scratched it on a rock. The light flared. He tossed it onto the leaves, near the animals.

Polly and Ken and the other two men above were fascinated spectators to the drama down in the slanting rock hole. Polly saw the flames take hold and flash rapidly through the dry trash down there. She jerked at Ken.

"Stand back!" she ordered all of them. "Back, quick!"

In a moment came a tremendous roar, from the largest bear again. Then a sudden, strange, eerie whimpering, almost a scream.

All at once there was a terrific scrambling. A black-brown animal leaped past Ward, whose body shielded Joy crouched down there. It climbed up the projecting rocks of the well-like entrance in one grand swoop.

The two smaller bears followed at her heels, crying like babies. Mother bear's call was an angry, terrorized, wavering sort of noise now. All three gained the surface again, then plunged off into the wilderness.

Ken heard the dogs bark, giving fresh chase. But he paid no attention. He and Polly and Brookfield were frantically reaching for Ward and Joy. Joy had already been lifted to his shoulders. Smoke all but stifled them and flames had actually begun to burn Ward's boot leather.

In a matter of seconds the escape was complete.

Joy stood there shaking in Polly's arms. Ward was stamping out the fire. He turned to the others unexpectedly, grinning.

"Plenty of fun, eh?" he asked. "Never know what to expect on a hunt. Lucky I had a few matches even though I don't smoke. Fire will whip down a wild animal when nothing else will. Scared 'em to death. Come on, chillun! Let's go on after them again!"

While the others stood there pale from sheer "nerves," he started back to his horse. He had to order his friends generally a second time to come on, if they wished to complete what they had started. Terry Brookfield was almost crazed with excitement; and as for the photographer, James Glenn—that young easterner was positively wildered! He had worked his expensive camera more rapidly than he had ever done before.

It took Ward nearly half an hour to catch up the dogs.

He reprimanded them severely, talking to them as if they were children, rubbing their noses in bear tracks and clapping them hard. Old Mag tucked her tail and cringed in shame.

"She knows better, the old hussy!" Ward grinned. Actually he disciplined his dogs with affection even though with firmness. "Lion trained, and chasing off after bears. Haven't you got any pride, Mag, you old flea-bit hound you! But they'll all do it. Hard to keep any dog off a bear trail. We'll cut down country a ways and turn 'em loose again. Still a good chance to pick up lions!"

There still hadn't been any time to discuss the adventure at the cave. Ward did all the talking. The other riders were numb.

Brookfield tried to heroize him, tried to ask a question or two, and Glenn was demanding some more poses of him to complete what he called "full story coverage." Both these men obviously were deeply impressed. Joy and Polly said nothing. Color had come back to Joy's face and she stared at Ward McMurray in a new sort of wonderment and admiration. Moreover, she spurred to be near him when he abruptly yelled "Come on!" again and strung them all out after the dogs. He had led off at a gallop.

Ken Palmer lagged behind to ride with Polly. Only when they were alone did he find his tongue.

"That's the most wonderful thing I ever saw!" he declared.

'Bugs' Baer Says:

Well, we let the Japs do their war shopping early, but now we are going to exchange the presents.

That's one case of yellow jaundice we are going to cure permanently.

I know that these are belligerent thoughts for the season of peace on earth and good-will to men. But they are two sentiments that we are just fresh out of.

I like the way Washington went to work on the gold braid in Hawaii, even though the verdict, "The Navy Was Not Alert," was a bit mild.

The Arabs express preparedness very well. They say, "Keep Thy Beard on Thy Shoulder."

"The most dramatic thing! Good lord, Polly, just think of it!" She nodded. They were riding faster now.

Suddenly, Ken smiled broadly at her. Polly's black curls were streaming out behind, bouncing with the horse's leaps, shaking around her cheeks tinted like mountain apples, touching her shoulders clad in turquoise green.

"Polly, this is adventure a fellow reads about!" "Yes, Ken!" "You live in a wonderful country!" "Yes, Ken!"

"Ward is—he's tops! I never saw anything like what he did! Joy Boone was cornered for once in her life! The bears had her number, didn't they?" "Yes, Ken!" "I'm having the time of my life!"

Away up front they heard Old Mag—"Ow-u-u-u-u!" "HURRY!" Ward yelled. "She's got lion tracks this time! I can see 'em plain. Softer soil along here!"

Ken Palmer rose in his stirrups. "EE-YEOW!" he barked, in sheer exhilaration.

Then he leaned low in his saddle, spurring, and his horse stretched out. He passed all the others and presently was at Ward McMurray's side.

Polly, momentarily alone again, felt a happiness singing within her. Near tragedy had colored this day's adventure, but that could be forgotten now.

"Ken's happy!" she breathed to herself. "He isn't in love with Joy at all. He doesn't belong to her! He's—free, and grand, like Ward. He's learning to love our western life!"

Down the trail a little way the dogs had out-distanced the horses, because of the rough terrain. Dogs could leap through, under and around things that would block the larger animals. But Old Mag kept up her bugling. Ward McMurray could "read" her barks and yelps. He knew when she was running on trail easily and when she had to pause to sniff it out again on some difficult place. She was the lead dog of the four.

Old Mag's voice changed noticeably after nearly an hour's run from the bear episode.

"She's about a quarter-mile off," Ward told the others. "And she's found a dividend trail. Some other lion probably joined the first one, then they separated again!"

Continued Tomorrow.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21 and April 19 (ARIES)—The entire day is favorable for general business activities, for laying out plans for future action, for contact with agents or representatives of authority, making plans, decisions and correspondence. You will find extremes of moods around you today, people who have a very steady influence upon you and others who are wholly pessimistic.

April 20 and May 20 (TAURUS)—Before 1:37 p. m. is not an auspicious period for making changes, for plans, and new and important undertakings. This period favors taking a conservative attitude toward affairs, and avoiding pessimism.

May 21 and June 20 (GEMINI)—You are likely to feel an excessive mental activity today, and your dealings will be surrounded by irritable, impulsive speech and action and nervousness. You may want to make radical changes and depart from established procedure, but caution should be used to avoid mistakes and unfavorable changes.

June 21 and July 22 (CANCER)—The same desire for activity surrounds you today which if used conservatively favors contacting those in authority, making plans, decisions and correspondence. You will find extremes of moods around you today, people who have a very steady influence upon you and others who are wholly pessimistic.

July 23 and August 22 (LEO)—During the entire day and until 7:15 p. m. favors general association with others. This is a favorable time for matters around the home, love affairs, inspirational matters and for continuance of ordinary financial matters.

August 23 and September 22 (VIRGO)—The combined influences for the entire day will cause you, those around you, and the world in general to demand haste, force and thereby bring on too much aggressiveness and miscalculation.

September 23 and October 22 (LIBRA)—There will be a lessening of tension both in your personal feelings and in dealings with others today. Before 8:11 p. m., you can deal with serious people advantageously and your mind will feel at ease when concentrating on the work at hand.

October 23 and November 21 (SCORPIO)—The entire day may be considered favorable for all lines of endeavor. Be active and energetic in promoting all matters. The afternoon hours are more favorable than those previous to 1:27 p. m.

November 22 and December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Good results should be derived from new beginnings today. Promises, interviews, communications, travel, financial interests and other affairs should be surrounded by much optimism and favor.

December 22 and January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Affairs started previous to 7:17 a. m. are likely to prove strenuous, or encounter sterner responsibilities than appeared on the surface. Between 7:17 a. m. and 7:51 p. m. you will feel a greater breadth of vision and your judgment regarding the future outcome of your interests will have a sound basis.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—During the entire day, you will have more than usual capacity for work that requires an alert mentality. You can introduce new methods in the things you are attempting, and transactions started today will be active and met unlooked-for developments for good.

February 19 and March 20 (PISCES)—The predominant influences before 2:02 p. m. favor dealings with the public, social and domestic contacts with partners and work that requires much detail. The remainder of the day will prove better if sudden, unpremeditated departures from the conventional are omitted.

Brown in Plane Crash, Ship-Sinking, Yet Lives

Mrs. Cecil Brown, who lives in New York city, received a cable from Cecil Brown, who lives in Singapore: "Health reasonably satisfactory. In October the Air Force crashed me. November an Army truck plunged over a hill with me. In December, the Navy tried to sink me. Since no additional branches of the force remain don't worry about the indestructible Mr. Brown."

Brown is the CBS Far Eastern correspondent who went into the sea from the sinking H. M. S. Repulse, and who came up with the sailors who were rescued; he is the former CBS Rome correspondent, who got the Fascists angry and was expelled from Italy; he is the former CBS Yugoslavian correspondent who arrived in that country the day German panzer divisions swooped down on it. He has come through with a whole skin, and comparatively unscathed. Mrs. Brown says her woman's intuition keeps her from going to pieces when he is in danger.

Betty Hutton To Join Bob Hope Show Today

Betty Hutton, irrepressible jilted girl who has made three guest appearances on Bob Hope's program, will become a regular member of the cast with the NBC-Red network broadcast tonight at 10 o'clock.

Miss Hutton first invaded New York as singer with a dance band, but was stranded when the venture failed. After two years with Vincent Lopez she starred in her own vaudeville act, but it was in

Sparkling Yule Program Is Set On WAGA at 8

Cary Grant, Judy Garland, Fredric March on Bond Hour.

A program bursting with Christmas cheer yet underlining the seriousness of the present hour will be presented by a glittering cast of radio, stage and screen stars from Hollywood and New York on the Treasury Hour, tonight at 8 o'clock over the NBC-Blue network and WSB.

From Hollywood will be heard Judy Garland, Marlene Dietrich, Cary Grant, Red Skelton, the King's Men, John Nesbitt, Dennis Morgan and Sabu.

From New York the program will present Alec Templeton, Fredric March, Florence Eldridge, Allen Reed, Tito Guizar, Barry Wood, Graham McNamee, Larry Elliott and Tom Jones conducting the orchestra and choir.

Miss Dietrich, of the glamorous gamins, will team up with Grant in a sparkling comedy written for the program by Herman Wouk. Nesbitt, famous narrator of the Passing Parade, will m. c. the Hollywood part of the program and put Skelton through his paces. Music will be supplied by the King's Men and Miss Garland, who will introduce the new song, "Chin Up, Cheerio and Carry On."

Sherman Kin To Get Fortune As Missing Heir

General's Descendant, Veteran of World War, on Air Tonight.

A collateral descendant of General William Tecumseh Sherman who ignored his famous ancestor's definition of war and fought with the AEF in the first world struggle, gets three Christmas gifts through the CBS program, "Are You a Missing Heir?"

An unexpected $25,000 inheritance.

An equally unexpected reunion with his two children, whom he hadn't seen since his wife divorced him in 1936.

The reunion comes tonight when Charles Elgar Sherman Jr., 45, of San Francisco, and the children tell their stories on "Are You a Missing Heir?" over WGST at 8 o'clock.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

Nazis Seen as Threat to U. S.

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 22.—Many American observers have feared that public attention would become so fixed on the war against Japan that the country might underestimate the importance of aid to Britain and Russia, or forget that the Japanese war is only part of a world conflagration.

These observers argue that the big job ahead is to beat Germany and that the Axis group cannot be decisively defeated until that is accomplished.

While military strategists are the ones to determine the merits of this contention, the attitude of the public is nevertheless an important factor. In order to determine how public thinking is oriented to the two wars, the American Institute of Public Opinion has undertaken a nation-wide survey of attitudes on the issue.

Greater Threat.

The results show that the public, whether rightly or wrongly, accepts the point of view that at the present time Germany, rather than Japan, is the greater threat to the future of the United States. This attitude is especially interesting in view of the fact that the survey was made directly after the war in the Pacific had burst upon the United States with cataclysmic suddenness.

The study was conducted during the period December 11-19 on the following issue:

"Which country is the greater threat to America's future—Germany or Japan?"

The results are:

Believe Germany the greater threat	64%
Believe Japan the greater threat	15
Believe they are equal threats	15
Undecided	6

A survey on the same general issue was conducted simultaneously among Canadian voters by the newly organized Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute.

The majority of Canadians likewise look upon the European front as the more important, but not to the same extent as Americans do. Following are the Canadian results:

"In your opinion which of the two battlefronts is more important for victory of the democracies—the

A. Z. A. Members To Convene Here

More than 200 A. Z. A. members will attend the fifth annual southern regional convention to be held next week at the Ansley hotel.

General Chairman Bobby Ney said the three-day session, beginning Monday, will include debates, seminars, oratorical contests, dances and basketball games.

During the intermission of the New Year's Eve dance a regional sweetheart will be chosen from the sweethearts of each chapter. This is the first year that a seminar will be held, Ney said, and Lieutenant Hugh G. Head, of the FBI, will be the leader.

Jewish soldiers in near-by camps have been invited to attend the session.

Relief Families To Get Presents

Santa Claus will not forget the families on relief rolls of the Fulton county department of public welfare.

Although the Christmas fund available will have to be stretched thin, Miss Annie Jo Johnson, supervisor of the welfare department directing Santa's activities, said yesterday children of families on relief will be remembered.

Among Christmas contributions received by the welfare bureau were $2,000 from the Junior Chamber of Commerce, $43 from Peachtree Road Methodist church, and $25 from a group of the United States Treasury department employees.

Toys made by the NYA will be distributed by the bureau also.

Troy, Fulton 'Watch' 'Fire Ball' Frankie

Jack Troy, sports editor of The Constitution, along with John Fulton, program director of WGST, tonight at 9:30 o'clock will present "Fire Ball" Frankie Sinkwich, ace Georgia footballer, with a watch as token of his gridiron work. The watch was presented to Frankie by Kate Smith, beloved radio singing star, after the Bulldog star had been placed on her "All-American" team.

Troy, Fulton and Sinkwich will gather in the studios of WGST tonight for the presentation.

At the City Hall

Sergeants Glenn and James Dewberry, 22-year-old twin sons of L. Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of the city hall, yesterday were visiting Atlanta on furlough from camp.

City personnel board will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the city hall. Stafford W. Graydon, director of personnel, said only routine matters are slated for consideration.

Mayor McCraw yesterday was proud of two Christmas cards which arrived at his office. One came from Lady and Lord Halifax, Lord Halifax is the English ambassador to the United States. The other came from Mayor LaGuardia.

City Comptroller B. Graham West yesterday lost a second employee to cupid in less than a month. Miss Adella Moore, secretary to Assistant Comptroller Lawrence James, was married last Friday to Private Glen B. Higgins, of Camp Stewart it was learned yesterday. November 22, James himself was married.

at the STATE CAPITOL

Women employees at the capitol yesterday were fingerprinted for civil defense work, but they balked at giving their age and weight. Approximately 600 women employees submitted to fingerprinting and questioning as a part of their enrollment in the capitol unit of the AWVS. Captain B. W. Seabrook, of the Atlanta police department, directed the fingerprinting.

Walter B. Cook, of Valdosta, yesterday was appointed judge of the Valdosta city court by the Governor. Cook, an attorney, succeeds Glenn Dickerson. The term runs until December 10, 1945.

A group of employees of the tag department, headed by Director W. L. Joiner, yesterday presented the Governor with a $25 defense bond as a Christmas gift.

The State Department of Labor will play Santa Claus to approximately 3,000 Georgians who will receive unemployment benefit checks amounting to about $25,000. The checks are routine payments, but will be placed in the mails before Christmas.

Don't envy anyone who picked up a splendid used car. Do as HE did. Find one exactly like it in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Pupils at Sparta

Buying Defense Bonds

Sparta, Ga., Dec. 22.—The boys and girls of the seventh grade of the local schools are buying defense stamps with the nickels and dimes they have formerly been spending for knickknacks. Their teacher, Miss Inez

Brinkley, collects the money each day and buys the stamps.

The pupils expect to continue this practice after the Christmas holidays and will buy a defense bond as soon as they get enough stamps. It is thought that other grades in the school will take up this patriotic effort to help their country in time of war.
